CHARLOTTE MILLS COLLAPSES

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 30.—Charlotte Mills, who was to be called as a witness by the State today, collapsed while walking in the sheriff's office this afternoon. A physician said the girl was suffering from ptomaine poisoning. Charlotte has been ill since last night, according to guests of the hotel where the daughter of the slain choir-singer has been staying. It was with difficulty the girl was awakened this morning, it was learned.

HELEN WILLS NOT TO PLAY SUZANNE

San Francisco, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—Helen Wills will not meet Suzanne Lenglen in tennis, despite reports to that effect. Dr. Sumner Hardy, president of the California Lawn Tennis Association, declared today the association had not asked sanction for such a meeting and had no intention of doing so.

U. S. MARINES LANDED IN HANKOW, CHINA

Washington, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Two American river gunboats have been ordered to Hankow on request of American Consul-General Lockhart.

London, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—The foreign community at Kiukiang has appealed for protection for 400 American and British citizens at the mountain resort of Kuling, whose safety is endangered in view of possible anti-foreign strikes, according to a dispatch from Shanghai.

London, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—British and French sailors and marines have landed at Hankow, and it is reported that United States Marines also went ashore to co-operate with them in what is described in special dispatches as "the gravest crisis in China since the Boxer rebellion."

The landing of the marines at Hankow was effected quietly, without bloodshed, the foreign office was advised today.

The trouble is due to the defeat of Peking government forces by the troops of the Canton government.

The Belgian consul-general at Hankow, China, reports that the situation is "extremely grave." Together with the Belgian minister in Peking, he is taking measures to protect Belgian interests.

EXPLORER AKELEY DIES AT HIS WORK IN AFRICA

New York, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—Carl E. Akeley, world-famous explorer, taxidermist, inventor and sculptor of big game, is dead in Africa, where he was engaged on a commission for the American Museum of Natural History, a cable received by that institution today says.

The cable was sent by Akeley's wife. It gave the cause of his death as a hemorrhage. The cable revealed no details, save that it occurred on Mount Mikino, in the Kivu district of the Belgion ongo, November 17.

Information was received here late in the Summer that Akeley had been attacked by fever, but later cables were reassuring, his complete recovery being reported in the early Fall.

Akeley started on his last expedition a little over a year ago, in company with George K. Eastman, camera manufacturer, of Rochester, N. Y., and an enthusiastic big game hunter, and William C. Leigh, a well-known painter of natural history

QUEEN MARIE WAITS WHILE SAILORS EAT

Cherbourg, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.)—Queen Marie of Rumania arrived here today on board the S. S. Berengaria. A special tender was sent out to take the Queen and her party and 200 pieces of baggage to the quay where special facilities were offered to speed her journey to Paris. There she is expected to see Prince Carol tomorrow.

General Angelesco of the Rumanian army, who was here to meet Queen Marie, admitted that he had talked with Prince Carol in Paris and had urged him not to return to Rumania.

"The king's health is not good, but it is not as serious as reported," said General Angelesco. "Nevertheless, I am going to urge her majesty not to stay long in Paris; they want her back as soon as possible."

High seas delayed the disembarkation of Queen Marie. The tender carried a French official welcoming

BANKERS IN CASE WILL GIVE UP

A Boston man and a Winthrop man were named today among the 47 minor defendants in the alleged gigantic New York-Boston rum conspiracy as the three principal defendants, New York bankers, agreed to return voluntarily to Boston and plead to indictments.

Frank O'Hearon of Boston and Harold W. Beach of Winthrop were the new men named as indicted in the Hub with Lewis H. Rothchild, vice-president of the Chelsea Exchange Bank of New York, and his two associates, Harold Smythe and James V. Boise.

In recognition of a rumor in Boston and New York that two New York magistrates are implicated in the conspiracy involving the steamer Cretan, Chief Magistrate McAdoo of New York today sent a telegram to the Federal district attorney's office, asking if the rumor had any basis in fact. The telegram said:

"A rumor persists that two magistrates, members of this board, have been indicted in connection with violations of the Volstead law. I will greatly appreciate it if you will inform me if this rumor has any basis of fact.

"If it is true that two magistrates, members of this board, have been so indicted their apprehension would not be endangered in any way by making their names public and for official reasons I ought to have the information at the earliest possible moment."

The surrender was made today by Martin W. Littleton, counsel for the men, following a conference with Assistant United States Attor-

HARMONY FOR 'CAL'

Washington, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—"Harmony breakfasts" at the White House with Senators and Representatives will become a regular institution this year, the presidential spokesman declared today. They are designed to furnish closer co-operation between the President and members of Congress.

The presidential spokesman said Mr. Coolidge had not thus far stressed tax reduction in his breakfast conferences, but he has received assurances from his visitors that they will give hearty consideration to the administration's proposal for tax credits next year, it was said.

Speaker Longworth will have breakfast with the President tomorrow.

G. O. P. DECLARES MAINE FREED OF KLAN THREAT

Portland, Me., Nov. 30.—"The sinister influence of an oath-bound organization no longer threatens the welfare of Maine," declared Chairman Daniel F. Field of the Republican State Committee today after pointing to the election of Arthur M. Gould as United States Senator as a defeat of the Ku Klux Klan which supported Gould's Democratic opponent.

Preparations were being made by Fulton J. Redman, the defeated candidate, to carry to Washington his claim that Gould waged his campaign illegally. Gould, victor by approximately 46,000, was elated at his overwhelming triumph which makes him, at the age of seventy-three, junior Senator from the Pine Tree State.

"I intend to present the case in Washington," said Redman. He will seek to prove to the U. S. Senate that Gold is not entitled to his seat in that body.

With the Maine Republican in the Senate the lineup there is: Republicans, 48; Democrats, 47, and Farmer-Laborite 1 giving the G. O. P. the upper hand.

With Redman, not only the Ku Klux Klan but also the Republican Governor, Ralph O. Brewster, suffered reverses.

WORD OF 'PIG WOMAN' ATTACKED; STATE MAY DEMAND A MISTRIAL

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 30.—Whether Special Prosecutor Simpson will demand a mistrial in the Hall-Mills murder case hinges on a conference to be held tonight with Governor A. Harry Moore, it was announced this afternoon.

If the State decides on such a move, it probably will be made tomorrow after Simpson has concluded his rebuttal testimony, which took up all of today's session.

Charges that a Somerville minister had talked with a juryman were being probed by the prosecutor in his plans to demand the threatened mistrial.

Early in the day Simpson declared he had received information that indicated "prejudice" on the part of the jurors.

The prosecutor already has twelve affidavits from courtroom spectators who have observed members of the jury asleep during important testimony. In addition, he holds a letter from one who says he heard jurymen admit, before the State's case was in, that they were ready to vote for acquittal.

Foul language, it is said, was addressed to one juror who professed to believe the "Pig Woman's" story. Simpson issued this statement in regard to the mistrial reports:

"We will move for a dismissal of the jury, providing we are able to obtain other affidavits that [illegible] statements made by jurors of which we have heard are true."

The prosecutor was given a shock today when one of his rebuttal witnesses, called to testify as to the character of Mrs. Jane Gibson, declared the woman's "reputation for veracity" was not "so good."

The "boomerang" witness was Dr. J. H. Cooper, of East Millstone, N. J. Dr. Cooper said he was Mrs. Gibson's personal physician and had known her for five or six years.

The witness was a trifle evasive and Simpson demanded:

"Tell me flat-footed whether her reputation is good or bad."

"Well," drawled the doctor, "I should say from what the neighbors say it was about fifty-fifty."

There was laughter in the courtroom and Simpson himself smiled

HERO OFFICER SAVES 8 AT WINTHROP BLAZE

A few minutes after he returned to his beat after a year's leave of absence, Patrolman Mortimer Northrup of the Winthrop police force discovered a fire today and made himself a hero.

Sounding an alarm he aroused two families in the wooden dwelling house at No. 237 Shirley street, where fire, starting from an undetermined cause in the attic, did damage of $4,500 to the attic and second floor.

From the second floor, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Novack and their two children were forced to flee into the rain, and Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Liberman and two children made their escape from the first floor after getting Northrup's warning.

Other families in the neighborhood were aroused by the excitement and for a time they feared that the flames would spread to nearby dwellings.

Two Families Flee $2,000 Medford Fire

Eight persons in two families, four of them children, were driven to the street today in Medford by a fire. Damage of $2,000 was caused. The fire started in the rear of Kent's Market in the three-story brick building at High street and Harvard [illegible].

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Stivers led their four children downstairs into the street, while Mrs. William Riddon was led down by firemen, her husband going unassisted through the smoke.

BAUER THREATENS TO PADLOCK ELKS' CLUB

Having vanquished the Salvation Army lassies on the question of street meetings, Mayor Bauer of Lynn today warned the Elks that their doors would be padlocked if gambling was allowed in the club [illegible].

Along with warning the Elks the Lynn crusader sent letters to a score of fraternal orders and clubs informing them that, "I will tolerate no gambling inside the lodge rooms."

In broadcasting his manifesto Mayor Bauer said he had knowledge of gambling in a Lynn lodge room, where one man won $500 after a meeting. He also said he understood bridge was becoming the most popular gambling game.

He has instructed police to raid the club and lodge rooms where gambling goes on.

committee, United States Consul Samuel Wiley and newspaper correspondents.

After a battle to reach the Berengaria the captain remembered it was luncheon time and headed for the harbor so that the crew might have luncheon while the queen waited aboard the Berengaria in the storm-tossed Channel.

After several hours the rough sea abated and the lighter put out again, this time succeeding in taking off the Queen and her party.

Queen Marie, setting out for Bucharest by way of Paris, was quoted as being content with her journey to the United States.

The Queen is expected to see her son, Carol, the former Crown Prince, in Paris. She is believed to be determned to exert all her power to protect the rights of Prince Carol's young son, Michael, to the throne under the present arrangement of a regency.

Consul Wiley carried a message for Queen Marie from Coolidge, which stated: "Mrs. Coolidge joins me in thanking your majesty for your radiogram of November 25 and for your photograph which we are happy to possess as a souvenir of your visit, of which we trust your majesty may always retain most pleasant memories."

On the Hungarian-Rumanian Frontier, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—Rumania today is a land where dame rumor parades openly as a prince's favorite, with little or no authentic information to say her nay.

Arriving on the frontier, this correspondent found a feverish excitement among the Rumanians, thirsting for news from the capital, as well as the greatest interest in information coming from the outside world.

A dozen different rumors and reports were abroad. Conspicuous among these were those that King Ferdinand has been dead since last Saturday night, but that the news is being suppressed. Another was that the Rumanian Minister of War, M. Mircescu, is expected to leave Rumania tomorrow "for a trip abroad.'

His trip is believed to have a double motive: first, to give Premier Averescue an opportunity to take charge of the Rumanian army as temporary Minister of War, to prepare against a possible forthcoming revolution, and second, to permit M. Mircescu to personally take charge of the Rumanian intelligence service abroad as a guaranty that former Crown Prince Carol will not be able to return to Rumania, as it is suspected he intends to do—perhaps in the returning retinue of Queen Marie, who arrives in Paris today.

The government has informed the editors and proprietors of newspapers that confiscation will immediately follow the publication of any item concerning the king's health or the question of succession to the throne other than the news contained in the official bulletins.

Berlin, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—King Ferdinand of Rumania has written a letter to the Rumanian Senate opposing the return of the exiled Prince Carol to his native land, it was learned through diplomatic channels here this afternoon.

The message stated, according to the information here, that the King was not desirous that his son return, as the King's condition was steadily improving.

of the situation at Hankow by the correspondents. They assert a shortage of food is threatened; that the Chinese refuse to supply foreigners or their servants. Foreigners in Shanghai are reported purchasing food and shipping it to Hankow to avert privations to fellow countrymen in the concessions.

ALARMED IN ENGLAND.

In the House of Commons, replying to a question concerning the situation at Hankow, Foreign Secretary Chamberlain said he had been informed in a communication from the British community there that there was fear of untoward incidents involving bloodshed. The protection afforded by the British naval forces, the communication added, was considered inadequate.

It is thought the government at present has no intention of ordering further naval units to China, it being considered that the vessels now in the Yangtse River are sufficient to deal with any crisis. The one difficulty at the moment is that the waters of the river are so low that naval vessels cannot navigate them with safety.

MARSHAL SUN RETREATS.

The forces of the Fukienese Marshal Sun Chuan-Fang are retreating toward Foochow before the Cantonese troops. A dispatch from Shanghai says anxiety is felt there for the safety of foreigners at Foochow. The civil governor of Fukien Province said he had decided to prevent the retreating forces from entering Foochow in the fear that disturbances and looting would result.

The new British minister, Miles W. Lampson, is due at Shanghai from Hong Kong. His arrival there is anxiously awaited. None of the newspapers here has as yet called for use of the "big stick" by Great Britain. The Daily News urges that Mr. Lampson be instructed to negotiate with the Cantonese government for a modus vivendi.

LOG BOOK BACK IN RUM TRIAL

The courtmartial of Coast Guard officers at the Navy Yard on charges of rum-running was marked today by another tilt between defense and prosecution counsel and the mysterious reappearance of the radio log book of the Coast Guard picket boat 151.

The log book vanished a week ago after defense counsel had asked that it be produced in the trial of John H. McEnroe. Nothing more was learned of its whereabouts until today, when the recorder found it had been returned to him as mysteriously as it had been stolen.

Attorney William H. Lewis, representing McEnroe, again today demanded that the government produce the mysterious agents, Arnold, Russ and Wilson, who were behind the investigation that led to the arrest of the four officers now on trial.

All during the trial witnesses have admitted that Arnold, Russ and Wilson forced them to tell their stories under threats.

MANY ATTEND FUNERAL OF FROTHINGHAM

The Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, D.D., president of the American Unitarian Association, read the Scripture and delivered the address to the tarong of mourners that filled the edifice and Dr. Francis G. Peabody of Harvard offered prayer and pronounced benediction.

The opening sentences were read by the Rev. Edward P. Daniels of Hingham, former assistant to the deceased, and he likewise pronounced the benediction.

All churches in the Boston circle were represented at the services and members were present from State and city federations, the Y. M. C. A. and various religious denominations.

BISHOP MANN PRESENT.

Among the better known attendants were Bishop Alexander Mann of Pittsburgh, and his successor at Trinity Church, the Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill.

Honorary pallbearers were:

President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard; Professor Edward C. Moore, chairman of the Harvard University board of preachers; Judge Robert Grant, William Endicott, I. Tucker Burr, James R. Hooper, Rear Admiral Francis T. Bowles, U. S. N., retired, Russell Fessenden and Dr. Henry Jackson of the Arlington Street Church, and Oliver Prescott of New Bedford.

APPEALS FROM HUB CUSTOMS

Eight hundred books written by Very Rev. Frank S. M. Bennett, dean of Chester Cathedral, England, were today the centre of a controversy between appraisers and the dean, here on a flying trip from Washington.

Included in the number are 250 copies of "M. Coue and His Gospel of Health," 50 copies of "A Soul in the Making," 500 copies of "Expecto" and 50 copies of "The Nature of a Cathedral." All were consigned to Miss R. Bigelow, No. 57 Monmouth street, Brookline, according to customs recrds, apparently for distribution in the name of the dean.

Arriving on the steamship Caledonian last October, the declared value of the books was set at £34 4s 8p, or approximately $170. The value was raised by local appraisers to $405, the duty being placed at $60.75. A penalty duty was added to this of 1 per cent. for each 1 per cent. that the appraised books exceeded the entered valu, totalling $303.75.

Dean Bennett took an appeal from the finding of the local appraisers, and following a hearing before the customs court at New York, rehearing was set for today before Justice George S. Brown of the New York customs court, in addition to several other appeals filed.

More perturbed about the controversy than the financial bearing, Dean Bennett is said to have cancelled three lecture engagements in order to appear here to clear his name.

DANCER SEEKS TO DIVORCE FILM IDOL

Paris, Nov. 30.—Mary Hay, who was Mary Coldwell in private life, today filed suit for divorce from Richard Barthelmess, famous screen actor. They were married in New York in 1920.

New York, Nov. 30.—The filing of divorce papers by Mary Hay puts an end to three years of speculation regarding the estrangement of the screen idol and Broadway dancing star.

Miss Hay several months ago retired from the cast of "Sunny," a musical comedy, in which she appeared in a dancing act with Clifton Webb. She went to the Coast to reclaim her daughter and arrange for the divorce, it was said at the time, although her managers in New York ascribed her withdrawal from the show to a broken ankle.

After her marriage to Barthelmess in 1920, Miss Hay, who first came to public attention as a dancer in the "Follies," retired from the footlights. The marital rupture occurred when she announced, after the birth of her child, her return to the stage as partner of Clifton Webb, frequently mentioned in gossip regarding the pair.

NEW WITNESS TO SLAYING IN MEDFORD

An important new witness, a boy of fifteen, was found today by police seeking the slayers of James Monagle, proprietor of the provision store at No. 557A Main street, Medford.

"This lad, whose name we will have to keep secret for the present, saw the struggle in the store when Monagle resisted the holdup men; saw one of the thugs with blood-stains on his light overcoat, and saw both dash from the store after the last shots were fired," said Chief John F. Welch of the Medford police.

"He got a good look at both of them. He was just passing the store when the first shot attracted his attention and he looked in through the door, not being able to see through the windows because the cold had caused them to 'steam up.'

BOY GIVES DESCRIPTION.

"This boy's description and that bloodstained overcoat may figure importantly in our investigation."

The discarded hat which one of the thugs left behind him in fleeing from the store also loomed more prominently as a clew today. It was discovered that it had been made smaller by padding under the inside band, and in addition to bearing the label of the seller, it was stuffed with a straw hat lining.

With other clues these peculiarities concerning the hat may eventually be just the things to reveal one of the slayers, the police believe. The chain of stores from which the hat

WOMAN LURE IN BOOTLEG CASE GETS JOLT

The use of women by Worcester police as a lure to trap alleged bootleggers received a jolt in Federal District Court here today when Judge James M. Morton restored to A. J. Fardon of that city an automobile seized by the Worcester liquor squad.

Fardon was not in court, but his attorney told Judge Morton that his client twice accommodated a Worcester police officer and woman companion with liquor and on the last occasion was invited by the officer to drive to a certain address where the purchase price would be paid.

According to Fardon's attorney, Fardon, on direction from the officer, drove the machine into an alley, where it was surrounded by a cordon of other officers, who promptly arrested Fardon for illegal transportation of liquor.

He was fined $100 on that charge in Worcester court and later fined $1 in Federal Court here, but the defense of being trapped was sustained by Judge Morton in ordering the automobile returned to the owner.

SULLIVAN RAPS 'TUNNEL-TOP' HIGHWAY PLAN

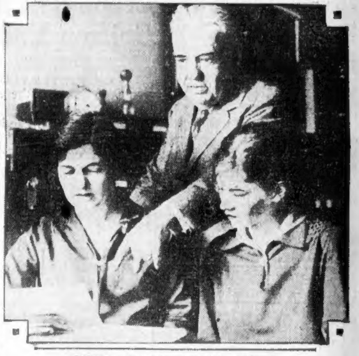
To construct a highway above the depressed tracks of the new Shawmut branch extension of the Andrew square tunnel route, between Geneva avenue and Peabody square, Dorchester, would cause serious complications and delay the completion of this rapid transit branch.

So declared Transit Chairman Thomas F. Sullivan today when asked concerning the action of the City Council which passed an order approving the "tunnel-top" boulevard plan as sponsored by Councillor Robert Gardner Wilson, Jr.

Unless additional property were taken there are many places where the width of the highway including sidewalks would not be over forty feet," said Col. Sullivan.

"If traffic conditions in that vicinity reach a stage where additional highways are necessary, it would be a comparatively simple undertaking to build a real broad thoroughfare virtually paralleling the Shawmut branch through existing public ways and private property, at less expense

WANTS BUTLER PROBE



GETS WIRE FROM REED

Conrad W. Crooker, lawyer, after going over returns, believes Republicans spent from $300,000 to $500,000 in Massachusetts. With Mr. Crooker in his office are Mrs. Gertrude C. Connors and Miss Alice A. Burke.

BEAUTY HELD ON CHARGE OF ROBBERY

It was because a Detroit shop owed her husband several hundred dollars that pretty Mrs. Maxine Larkin, 18-year-old wife of a Detroit lawyer, "borrowed" a leopard-skin coat from the shop, she declared today at police headquarters, where she is held for the Detroit police.

Detroit claims she stole the coat but the girl, blonde, beautiful and of unquestioned refinement, tearfully denied any intention of theft. She charged a family feud was responsible for her plight.

She admitted she had come East to the Harvard-Yale game with a Harvard student, resident of Detroit, and that she registered at the Copley Plaza before going to the Brunswick Hotel, where she was arrested by Inspectors Dorsey and Augusta.

"The Florence Martin Coat Shop in Detroit owed my husband several hundred dollars and I decided the only way to collect was by taking merchandise," she explained.

"A few days before the Harvard-Yale game I walked in and selected a coat with the understanding I would return it Saturday.

"My plans miscarried and apparently the proprietor saw fit to embarrass my husband and me by bringing this ridiculous charge. I shall bring suit when I return."

Maxine would not divulge the details of the "feud," but when the police ordered her to turn the coat over to them Maxine's air of boredom deserted her and tears began to flow.

Mrs. Larkin was held in $1,000 bail until Thursday.

AROUSED BY OFFICER

Mary Liberman of No. 237 Shirley street, Winthrop, who escaped fire that did $4,500 worth of damage to the house. She lived on the first floor.

ESCAPED AT MEDFORD FIRE

William, Mary and John Stivers, children of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Stivers, found their way to the street, at High street and Harvard avenue, when their home burned to the extent of $2,000 damage.

FLAPPER OF 65 HAPPY IN NEW LOVE NEST

South Deerfield, Nov. 30.—Regardless of what Northampton society folk may think of the marriage of Mrs. Estella Woodward, 65-year-old wealthy widow, to her 21-year-old chauffeur, Herman LeTourneau, the honeymooners are wholly happy in their love-nest here.

Kin to some of the wealthiest families in the East, and independent in her own right, the silvery-haired widow admitted that she fell in love with the handsome youngster who sought employment from her but a few months ago.

"This is the flapper age," she said, "and the flapperism takes no count of age. I am a flapper. By that I mean that I am wholly alone, with my life to lead regardless of what anybody else may think. My husband died. My children grew up and left me.

"My late husband was 20 years older than myself, so that when I thought of a second marriage I was determined that this difference in age would be vice versa the next time.

"My husband is young and he wants to go out evenings. So we go out. We go to Greenfield and have a good time. My first chauffeur was 49 years old, but I didn't want a man of that age. All that Herman will have to do is be kind to me."

Herman would say nothing about his romance to the wealthy widow, but that he has an eye out for business was evident when he was requested to pose for his photograph and he asked: "How much is there in it for me for posing?"

U. S. PRIEST IS HELD IN MEXICO

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Father Mariano Guerrero, in charge of Catholic churches at Ysleta, San Jose and San Juan, all in El Paso county, was arrested in Juarez and sent to Chihuahua City under guard General Ramon Lopez, commander of the Juarez garrison, announced today.

Father Guerrero was arrested as he departed from a visit among prisoners in the Juarez City jail, charged with "practicing religion," General Lopez said.

5 STORES BURN IN BRIGHTON

Five stores suffered $4,200 damage today when fire starting in the basement at No. 236 Faneuil street, Brighton, spread through the business block. Cause of the fire is unknown.

It was discovered in the basement of the A. & P. store at No. 236 Faneuil street. Before apparatus arrived it had jumped to the basement of a variety store owned by Sarah Pheader at No. 234.

On the other side it spread to the Tappin tailoring establishment, the Texaco oil store and a grocery store owned by Charles E. Gardner at No. 240. Smoke and water caused most of the damage.

It Is Dangerous to Lie About U. S. Weather Men

Washington, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—The prophet of unseasonable weather or storms, who attributes his forecasts to the government Weather Bureau, may be liable to a $500 fine or a 90-day jail term or both.

Hitting at weather reports falsely credited to the Weather Bureau, the Department of Agriculture today warned persons who disseminate these reports, that they are guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine or prison sentence.

$215,688,616 IN CASH FOR WAR VETS

Washington, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.). —World War adjusted compensation certificates will be worth $215,688,616 in cash on Jan. 1 to over 2,500,000 veterans, the U. S. Veterans' Bureau announced today.

Certificates in force for two years have an initial loan value of about 8½ per cent. Policies maturing for loan collateral purposes during the year will represent a value of $262,538,344.

In the subsequent three years the total of 3,048,933 compensation certificates now in force will have the following loan values: 1928, $370,910,606; 1929, $482,048,654; 1930, $590,988,[illegible].

The certificates will increase annually in loan value, reaching a maximum at maturity of $3,137,658,062, at which time they will be redeemed at face value by the government.

General Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau, pointed out that the government will not loan money on the policies, prior to cashing them at maturity, but that banks or trust companies chartered by Federal or State governments have the authority to make advances, with the policies as collateral.

Holders of certificates which were approved by the government on or before January 1, 1925, will be entitled to use the policies as collateral for loans January 1, 1927. Over two-thirds of the certificates issued were approved prior to 1925, but another million will mature for loan purposes at later dates.

CONFERENCE IN HUB ON FARM MARKETING

Farmers and dairymen of New England and representatives of all agricultural associations, agricultural colleges and marketing associations in the New England States, were today invited to attend a New England Farm Marketing Conference at the State House Dec. 9 and 10.

Planned by the agricultural committee of the New England Council and the agricultural commissioners of the six New England States, the conference will be the first attempt of agricultural interests to solve their common problems on an all-New England basis.

The purposes of the gathering are the finding and promoting of better methods of marketing New England farm products and developing a standardized grading system for quality farm products.

One of the features of the Boston conference will be an early morning inspection of the market district under the auspices of the Massachusetts Department of Markets. Those attending the conferences will be given a choice of visiting the fruit and vegetable market, the poultry market, milk plant or Quincy storage plant at 6 o'clock on the morning of Dec. 10.

Special group meetings will be held to thresh out some of the problems of producers in various lines of farming, including dairy husbandry, pomology, poultry husbandry, vegetable gardening, potato culture and sheep husbandry.

Both the producer and the consumer will be benefited by standardized grading of products for marketing, the agricultural committee of the New England Council believes. Plans for the conference have been in the making since last June, when the need of such a gathering was recognized by the committee which was then undertaking a study of New England's farm problems.

FRANCE NAMES CLAUDEL AS AMBASSADOR TO U. S.

Paris, Nov. 30 (A.P.)—The Cabinet today ratified Foreign Minister Briand's choice of Paul Claudel, now Ambassador to Japan, to succeed Henry Berenger as Ambassador to the United States. M. Berenger refused to accept further extension of his appointment to the post on the ground that his work in connection with the debt funding agreement was completed. Official declaration of M. Claudel's appointment is withheld, subject to the usual acceptance on the part of Washington. He is a veteran diplomat, having served in various important posts since beginning his diplomatic career 30 years ago, when he served in the French Consulates in New York and Boston.

GREEK PRINCESSES UNDER KNIFE FOR APPENDICITIS

Florence, Italy, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Two former Royal Princesses, Irene and Catherine of Greece, were operated on today for appendicitis. The Princesses are daughters of the late King Constantine. Princess Helen of Rumania, wife of former Crown Prince Carol, is a sister of the young women. Dowager Queen Sophie is at their bedside.

It is said the operations were successful and that the Princesses will recover in a short time. Princess Irene is 22 years old and Princess Catherine is 13.

CUSTOMS AGENT SLAYER FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

Burlington, Vt., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Walter Mason of Fort Ann, N. Y., was found guilty of second degree murder today for shooting to death Customs Agent E. B. Webb, a few miles north of here on the night of Oct. 8. Mason was charged with first degree murder.

Mason was sentenced to life imprisonment and M. G. Leary, counsel for the defendant, made an appeal on the ground that there was insufficient evidence to warrant a verdict of second degree murder.

Get German Fellowships

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.)— Twenty fellowships in German universities for the academic year 1927-28 are to be awarded American students, it was announced today by Dr. Carl J. Friederich, director of the American German student exchange.

SESQUI CLOSES TONIGHT WITH $5,000,000 DEFICIT

Philadelphia, Nov. 30 (A.P.)—Celebration of the 150th birthday anniversary of the nation ends officially today.

The grounds and a few buildings of the sesquicentennial exposition will be kept open until January 1 in connection with back bills, but officially all activities will cease tonight with the singing of the national anthem and a commemorative dance in the big auditorium.

It was a financial failure, costing the city of Philadelphia approximately $17,000,000, exclusive of the $3,000,000 subscribed by business concerns and individuals, and closes with a deficit of more than $5,200,000.

AGED WOMAN ATTACKERS LAST GEORGIA HANGING

Gray, Ga., Nov. 29 (A.P.).—Sentences of death in the hangman's noose were pronounced on Jarrett Benford, 24, and Wade Johnson, 23, of Baldwin County, in Superior Court here today for a criminal attack upon an 80-year-old woman more than two years ago. They were returned immediately to the county jail at Macon to await execution, December 31.

The two will be the last to pay the death penalty in this State by hanging. Since they were convicted, the electric chair has been substituted for executions.

42 INDICTED IN WEST COAST RUM-RUNNING

San Francisco, Nov. 30 (A.P.)—Forty-two secret indictments against alleged members of a liquor smuggling conspiracy extending from British Columbia to Southern California were voted by the Federal Grand Jury. The indictments were returned as the first step in a move by the government to break up what it calls the largest rum running combine ever to operate on the Pacific Coast.

DOCTOR ATTACKS WORD OF PIG WOMAN WHEN PLACED ON STAND AS STATE WITNESS

The defence fingerprint evidence was attacked by the prosecution on the grounds that distortion in enlarging the telltale print tends to clear Willie Stevens.

The State has charged that a print of Willie's left index finger is on the famous calling card found near the body of Dr. Hall. The defence claims Willie's print does not coincide with the print on the card.

Joseph A. Faurot, fingerprint expert, formerly with the New York police department, testified today, in the State's rebuttal, that the defence enlargement of the print on the card is "distorted."

"This distortion eliminates some of the characteristics I have relied on," he said. "It would be difficult to identify the defence enlargement as an actual enlargement of the print on the card."

The first witness today was August Hartcorn, the handwriting expert, who testified yesterday that an entry in the diary of Henry Stevens for September 14, 1922, differed from all other entries in the diary.

Wasn't in the Circus

When court opened Prosecutor Simpson asked for permission to call several witnesses to testify as to the reputation of Mrs. Jane Gibson, State's star witness, for truth and veracity, but the defense insisted that it be allowed to examine Hartcorn at once.

Another photograph of the much discussed calling card, which the State claims contains the fingerprint of Willie Stevens, was introduced as evidence as Hartcorn took the stand.

Hartcorn testified he was present when a photograph of the card was taken. He said he found the initials "E. H. S." in the lower right-hand corner of the card. Asked by Prosecutor Simpson if they were the initials of Edward H. Schwartz Newark fingerprint expert, he replied that he didn't know.

Witness was then questioned by Attorney McCarter of the defense.

Q.—Were you or were you not in a circus? A.—Yes and no.

Q.—Well, which is it? A.—I was auditing for the United States Circus Corporation.

Q.—Did you travel with a circus? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever see the handwriting of Jane Gibson? A.—No.

Change in Diary

The defense has alleged that Mrs Gibson was once a circus rider.

Attorney McCarter next handed the witness Henry Stevens' diary and asked:

"I understand you said yesterday that the entry on September 14, 1922, reading 'Art 1 blue 6 lbs.' was made with another pencil?" "Yes," replied the witness.

Q.—What do you base that opinion on?

A.—Because it is made with a softer lead.

The witness testified that, in his opinion, Henry's entry of the 14th was intended originally for the 15th, because of a line being drawn under it to separate the two dates.

Several witnesses called to testify in support of Henry Stevens' alibi said that Arthur Applegate, a Lavallette (N. J.) neighbor of Stevens, caught a six-pound bluefish on the evening of the murders and that for this reason they remembered that Stevens was in Lavallette, and not at the scene of the crime.

While Hartcorn was called by the prosecution as a hand-writing expert and not as a fingerprint expert, McCarter drew from him a statement that he had found no thumb print on the calling card found at the scene of the slaying.

McCarter then had the witness point out the letters "E. H. S." on the calling card to each member of the jury

Q.—Were you not told since you have taken hold of this case that Schwartz's initials were "E. H. S."? A.—No.

Q.—You were never told? A.—Not till afterwards.

—When did Mr. Schwartz tell is initials were E. H. S? A.— three days after I made my to Mr. Simpson.

Physicians Give Up All Hope for 'Pig Woman'

Jersey City, N. J., Nov. 30.—All hope for the life of Mrs. Jane Gibson, "pig woman" witness in the Hall-Mills murder case, was abandoned today by the physicians in the local hospital where she has lain since her startling testimony. The woman has been pain-wracked for the past few days, but today radium brought her a measure of relief though no ultimate hope, according to her physicians. She suffers from a complication of diseases, including heart trouble, kidney ailments and cancer.

Q.—Was it a written report? A.—No.

Dr. Walter Madden, former mayor of Trenton, was next. He said he knew Mrs. Jane Gibson when she lived in Trenton from 1911 to 1914.

"What was her reputation for truth and veracity when you knew her?" asked Prosecutor Simpson.

Atty. Case of the defense objected because the time was too remote, and the judge upheld him.

Dr. Madden was then excused.

Dr. J. H. Cooper, the next character witness, said he had treated Mrs. Gibson during the first investigation of the double slaying.

"Wasn't she a hard-working woman—" began Prosecutor Simpson, but defense objected and was sustained.

Q.—What is her reputation for truth and veracity, good or bad? A.—Not so good. From what people say to me, I'd say it's about fifty-fifty.

The defense did not cross-examine.

The State then recalled Joseph Faurot, one of its fingerprint experts. Simpson handed him three enlargements of the calling card exhibit, and Faurot pointed out to the jury the points on the card which did not appear in the huge defense enlargements.

Ridges Are Missing

"The defence enlargements are a distortion," Faurot testified. "There are ridges missing on the enlargement."

On cross-examination Attorney McCarter of the defence asked Faurot if it was not a fact that the "distortion" he referred to "arises from the fact that when a picture is enlarged the rays cause a certain obscurity or failure of brilliancy at the outside which is not true in the centre?"

Faurot said "Yes."

He admitted that the distortion he pointed out in the defence's exhibit was on the outside, not in the centre.

Lieutenant Frederick Drewen, another fingerprint expert, was next called. He was questioned by Simpson.

Q.—What is lost in this defense enlargement? A.—The loss here makes the characteristic "B" appear as an island, when it is really a ridge. On line D we find a number of islands, and dots, which do not appear on the original print.

Attorney McCarter—Is there any distortion in the enlargements used by the prosecutor? A.—Not as much as in these larger enlargements.

"Except on Sundays"

Captain Edgar H. Schwartz, noted fingerprint expert who was next called, was first questioned by Simpson.

Q.—Is this defence enlargement a true copy of the fingerprint in question? A.—It decidedly is not. It is an exaggerated copy and not only contains characteristics the original has not but leaves out characteristics the original contained

Q.—Will you tell me what powders these prints are made with?

Attorney McCarter objected.

Q.—Are you a chemist? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you make these prints? A.—Yes, with Commissioner Faurot and Lieutenant Brown.

The cards shown were the ones which had confused Kuhne when he was asked what powders were used in developing them. On direct examination Kuhne had testified that he could tell two powders were used on the card—graphite and lampblack.

Attorney McCarter objected to Schwartz's testimony in respect to the powders because Schwartz was not a chemist. At this Schwartz exclaimed:

"I know what I purchased them for."

The witness produced a phial which he said he bought as graphite. He was handed another, containing lampblack. These were used in developing the cards, he said.

One by one Schwartz told whether one powder or the other, or both, were used in developing photoed fingerprints of himself, Faurot and Drewen.

Q.—Were any of these prints super-impositions? A.—Yes, all but one.

Q.—Were any of these identified by Mr. Kuhne? A.—Only one.

Attorney McCarter then took the witness over.

Q.—Who bought these little bottles of powder? A.—I purchased one, Mr. Faurot the other.

Q.—How long ago? A.—Maybe six months ago, maybe a year.

Q.—Do you always carry these little bottles with you? A.—Yes, except on Sunday or holidays.

Q.—The purpose of making these cards was to impute or break down the evidence of Mr. Kuhne? A.—It was to show that it was impossible to tell what powder was used without a microscopic examination or chemical analysis.

Most of the cards shown in court were developed with graphite, it developed. Both powders were never used on the same card.

Kuhne testified the agent used in many instances was a "mixture" which he could not identify.

Several witnesses called to testify as to the character of Mrs. Gibson, the "Pig Woman," all admitted it was "good."

ROPE AND CHAIR END LIFE

Worcester, Nov. 30.—Due to poor health and ill-fortune in business Samuel Coblintz, 45, well known in the wool waste business here, committed suicide today by hanging.

Going to the warehouse of a friend, Harry Burton, in Harding street, he stood on a chair looped a rope around his neck and kicked the chair from under his feet. Harry Marcum, an employe, found him more than three hours later.

Coblintz, who lived in Cutter street, sold out his wool waste business about a year ago and later opened a fish market but he sold this business three weeks ago. He leaves a wife and two children.

MISS LONGFELLOW AIDS TO CURB VETS' PREFERENCE

Miss Alice M. Longfellow of Cambridge, daughter of the poet, was one of the principal contributors to a fund for reducing preference given to veterans in civil service, a move repudiated by the voters in the November election.

Miss Longfellow gave $500 to the Committee for a Reasonable Veteran Preference, a report filed today at the State House disclosed. The committee reported receipts of $10,479.12 and expenditures of a like amount. Liabilities of $275.32 to the Massachusetts Civic League are revealed.

Contributors, in addition to Miss Longfellow, listed were:

Robert G. Dodge, $35; Richard H. Dana, $125; Grafton D. Cushing, $5; Ernest B. Dane, $500; Amory Eliot, $10; Boston League of Women Voters, $3.04; Moorfield Storey, $600; Mrs. Curtis Guild, $10; Bentley W. Warren, $50; Augustus P. Loring, $5; Mrs. Roland M. Baker, $5; Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, $100, Courtenay Guild, $100; Hornblower & Weeks, $500; A. Lawrence Lowell $10.

Charlotte Says Hall Trial Turned Into a Farce

By CHARLOTTE MILLS

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 30.—The atmosphere of uncertainty which hangs about the courtroom today overshadows the actual testimony.

My heart is heavy with depression over the turn affairs have taken with all this tempest about the jury. After all this can I ever believe in anything any more? It is said that nine of the jurors have made up their minds for acquittal without hearing all the evidence.

CHARLOTTE MILLS.

If the jury, after a calm consideration of the facts, had freed Mrs. Hall and her two brothers, I would have been satisfied. But now, with all this talk about irregularities, how can I have faith? Can men be so heartless and unfair that they will let petty politics and such things cloud their judgment in a trial where the State is testing the guilt of three people charged with murder?

Of course, I have a personal interest. The murdered woman was my mother, but I should be just as furious if it had been a person I never saw. Must I now face life convinced there is no justice in the world? Must I lose faith in mankind? Must I build my future life on bitterness?

I am heartsick over the whole thing. A trial for murder turned into a farce.

TRUCK SAVED BY RAIL ON BRIDGE

Heavily laden with paper stock, a truck owned by Yiddel & Fettig, a moving concern of No. 1368 Washington street, crashed through the flooring of the Dover street bridge today and narrowly missed going into the channel.

Only the presence of the street car rail which caught the housing on the rear axle of the truck prevented the heavy machine from sliding backwards into the water. The paper stock rolled off as the driver jumped for his life.

The truck was operated by John Ridlon. The right rear wheel broke through the boards causing the truck to tilt backwards. Ridlon managed to stop it and jumped fearing the truck was backing into the water.

POPE CONGRATULATES PAIR WED 50 YEARS

Concord, N. H., Nov. 30.—A telegram of congratulations from the Pope was read by the Rt Rev. George A. Guertin, Bishop of Manchester, at the 50th wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. William Joseph Ahearn in St John's Roman Catholic Church today. Parochial schools in this city were closed in honor of the occasion.

Mr. Ahearn is the Commissioner of Charities and Corrections for the State of New Hampshire.

Services at the church were attended by about 500 friends and relatives of the celebrants, including a number of visiting bishops and priests from New Hampshire and Massachusetts. Five children and three grandchildren were present.

CHARACTER WITNESSES AID SONS IN MORSE TRIAL

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Character witnesses took the stand today as a defence move in the Morse conspiracy case.

Witnesses testified to the good reputation of Erwin A. and Benjamin W Morse two of the three sons of Charles W Morse, on trial with four other men for conspiracy to defraud by sending false financial statements of the Morse Shipping Companies through the mails

AKELEY DIES ON AFRICAN TRIP

subjects. Eastman returned about a month ago

A short while prior to his death, Akeley and Leigh had received a new commission from the King of Belgium to do further work in the interior of the Belgian congo. He is believed to have been about to start on the new commission at the time of his death.

The museum issued the following statement on his death:

"The death of Mr. Akeley comes as a great shock to the museum, because, although it had been learned in the late Summer that he was suffering from fever, officials of the museum had been reassured by cables minimizing the seriousness of his illness and later reporting his recovery.

"He had recently proceeded to the Kivu district to complete his studies for the gorilla group to be placed in the great African hall of the museum."

Mr. Akeley was twice married, and both of his wives were also noted as explorers. His first wife was Miss Delia J. Jenning of Beaver Dam, Wis. After their divorce he married in October, 1924, Miss Mary J. Jobe, of New York, noted as an explorer of the Canadian Rockies. She accompanied him on his last trip to Africa

Two years ago a stir was caused in New York artistic and church circles by his figure "The Chrysalis," a bronze study symbolical of evolution. It was finally unveiled in the West Side Unitarian church.

Drys Hail Ruling on Prescriptions as Aid to Enforcement

Washington, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—The Supreme Court's decision, by a 5 to 4 vote, that Congress has the right to say how much liquor a physician may prescribe for a patient, was received with mixed emotions today by the wets and drys.

Ardent prohibitionists hailed the decision as another nail in John Barleycorn's coffin and asserted it would materially aid stricter enforcement.

Wet spokesmen were divided in sentiment. While most of them supported the views of the dissenting four justices of the Supreme Court—that Congress has no constitutional power to interfere with a physician's practice—some of them expressed the hope that in the end it might make modification easier.

BODY OF WOMAN DISMEMBERED TO HIDE CRIME

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Frank Trapia of Brooklyn was charged with homicide today after the torso of a woman, whose body he admitted dismembering, was found in his home.

Trapia was arrested by a patrolman who saw him throw a package from an East River pier.

Police said Trapia at first told them he had killed the woman whom he knew only as "Marie," by a blow on the head in a fit of anger, later dismembering the body in order to dispose of it.

Later they said he retracted this story and said that the woman died of heart failure while in his home and that he cut the body up to dispose of it in fear that he would be charged with her death.

FALL RIVER LINE RATE TO BOSTON IS REDUCED

Effective tomorrow, the New England Steamship Company, operating the Fall River line ships between New York and New England points, announces a reduction in fares. The rate from Boston to New York is reduced from $6.28 to $5 and similar reductions are made to other New England points.

The Fall River Line operates four passenger steamers,—the Commonwealth, Priscilla, Providence and Plymouth, making an all-night trip from New York to Fall River and reverse. Connections are made at Fall River with numerous Massachusetts points.

Hall Trial Halted as Court Searches Camera 'Suspects'

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 30 (A. P.).—Mistaken identity halted the Hall-Mills trial for a time today when five Somerville men were marched from a gallery into the courtroom and then marched right out again.

The five suspects, sitting together in a front row and leaning over the gallery rail, came under suspicion as photographers, barred from the court by judicial order.

Justice Parker, presiding, thought he saw a camera in the gallery and sent John Bunn, court crier, to "bring the men down."

"Frisking" showed all were innocent and they were released. Later they were photographed as "honorary members of the Photographers Union."

SILK EXPRESS CROSSES U. S. IN 85 HOURS

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—In quicker time than the fastest passenger train connections between New York and the Pacific Northwest, a journey from Seattle to New York has been completed in less than 85 hours actual traveling time by a nine-car silk express, carrying a cargo valued at $1,600,000, it was learned today from A. W. Von Arx, general eastern freight agent of the Chicago Great Western Railroad. The average speed of the train was 50 miles an hour.

The special, with its valuable product from the Far East, left Seattle on the evening of November 19, over the Great Northern, and at St. Paul was picked up by the Chicago Great Western for the run to Chicago, remaining in St. Paul only long enough to change engines. The dash from Chicago to Buffalo then was undertaken by the Wabash, and at that point turned over to the Delaware & Lackawanna & Western for the final lap to New York.

The transcontinental trip at such speed, it was explained, required the most exacting class of service, in which the four participating railroads thoroughly co-operated.

FIND DERELICT OFF COAST OF MAINE

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 30 (A.P.)—An upturned schooner bottom and a battered lifeboat that drifted aimlessly off the Maine coast were believed today to hold the key to another tragedy of the North Atlantic.

Captain William Kinghorn of the schooner Hattie J. Allis reported the derelict in a letter dated November 26 at Bass Harbor, Me.

The captain thought the wreck was the three-masted schooner Frederick J. Lovett of Machiastport, Me., but C. A. and D. F. Small, its owners disclosed that letters from the Lovett's crew were mailed from Rockland on November 26.

Today the vessel was reported in Portland harbor with her cargo of laths, bound to New York from Salmon River, N. S. She arrived last night.

Attempt to Float Schooner Northam Tonight

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 30 (A.P.). The schooner Emily F. Northam, which ran aground between Cranbery and Baker's Islands near Bar Harbor early last Friday morning, was still hard and fast today, according to advice received at the naval commandant's office here this morning.

The schooner was in no danger of breaking up, the report said, and the coast guard cutter Mojave was to make another attempt to float her this evening

Crew Rescued From Wreck on the Penquins

St. John's, N. F., Nov. 30 (A.P.)—The three-masted schooner Union Jack, Captain Martin Frampton was a total loss today after going ashore on the Penquin Islands. The crew was rescued by the steamer Susu.

NEW ENGLAND POLICE WARNED OF SAFE GANG

Police departments of Boston and throughout New England were warned today of the theft by a gang of thugs in Pawtucket, R. I., of safe-blowing materials in quantities sufficient "to burn clear through the Rock of Gibraltar."

The materials were stolen from a welding plant in the center of the Rhode Island mill city and Chief of Police Hill of Pawtucket, who broadcast the alarm, believes the thieves are connected with a "safe-cracking" gang which plans to operate throughout the East.

A huge supply of acetylene torches and all the accessories required for acetylene burning on a large scale were among the loot taken. Pawtucket authorities have no clue to the thieves, who made their getaway in a high-powered truck.

NEW STATE CONTRACT ENDS LONG DISPUTE

A contract between the State and Middlesex County for the care of the county's tubercular patients at the Rutland State Sanatorium for an eighteen months' period was renewed today, effective tomorrow, ending a controversy that has waged for more than six months.

The claim of the State that the county commissioners owe $40,000 for its patients, according to State Health Commissioner George H. Bigelow, has been acknowledged and adjustments will be made.

WIFE OF GEN. WOOD'S SON GRANTED FINAL DECREE

Baltimore, Nov. 30 (A.P.)—Catherine Thompson Wood was granted a final decree of divorce from Osborne C. Wood, son of Governor-General Leonard Wood of the Philippines in Superior Court here today.

A decree nisi was granted November 30, 1925. Mrs. Wood is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Thompson of this city.

Jim's a Prophet and a Gentleman; He Wants a Blonde!

Gentlemen prefer blondes and so do prophets, according to a letter received by Mayor Nichols today from Jim McNulty, of Minneapolis, Minn.

Jim writes that he is the world's champ as a prophet, but just at present he is really interested in finding a tall, blue-eyed blonde in Boston.

Jim says he wants to write to her and asks the mayor to help him. As Mayor Nichols is pretty well out of the blonde business—in fact just returned from his honeymoon with a brunette—he passed the letter on to associates

The latter may be able to help Jim from Minneapolis.

NEW BUILDINGS AT DARTMOUTH

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 30 (A.P.)—Plans for the erection of two new buildings at Dartmouth College were announced today by President Ernest M. Hopkins.

One is to be a dormitory to accommodate about 100 students and will be probably erected on the Hitchcock estate. President Hopkins emphasized that the new building is simply to supplant outworn structures and that it will not provide for an increase in the size of the undergraduate body.

The other building will house the natural sciences of biology, geology, botany and zoology, and will provide equipment and facilities which have been lacking.

Construction of both will start in the Spring.

BANDAGED HAND TRICK GETS $1,000 FROM BANK

Detroit, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—The "bandaged hand" bandit staged a successful raid on a branch of the People's State Bank today.

The bandit, a napkin wrapped around his hand, presented a note to James Boyd cashier, which read: "Don't make any noise and give me $1,000." From the covered hand the barrel of an automatic protruded. The cashier hastily complied with the written order.

$300,000 IN LIQUOR ON SEIZED SCHOONER

New York, Nov. 30 (A.P.)—The schooner Consuelo, 2d, carrying a cargo of liquor which customs officials estimate might sell for $300,000, was towed up the bay today.

Customs officials said that the schooner was first sighted by the destroyer Porter outside the territorial waters.

It was kept under observation, and when it entered territorial wat r and headed toward this port it was boarded and seized.

AVERT A STRIKE OF MOVING PICTURE WORKERS

Los Angeles, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—The threatened December 1 strike among moving picture workers has been averted, it was learned here today from Cleve Beck, vice-president of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employes. A satisfactory agreement was to be signed this afternoon between union and studio representatives, Beck declared.

PIEMAKERS OF U. S. SEE NEED OF MERGING

Closer affiliation with the national body and amalgamation of unattached groups of bread, cake and pie manufacturers engaged the attention of the organizing committees at the two-day session of the New England Bakers' Association, which opened today at the Copley-Plaza Hotel.

The reports of the committees will be offered tomorrow at the regular business session of the convention, presided over by G. F. Parker in the Swiss room. President Parker, in his report of the year's doings of the New England body, touched on the need of organized effort and concerted action in making possible a more effective organization in the promotion of the business.

William L. Durland, treasurer, reported a substantial sum on hand and made several important announcements dealing with the inner workings of the organization.

Approximately 200 delegates, representing 4,000 bakeries in different parts of the country, were enrolled by Miss Virginia Price at the registration bureau in the lobby during the morning session.

Among the delegates enrolled were Chauncy Abbott, Jr., Omaha, Neb.; R. W. H. McKenzize, Saginaw, Mich.; Fred Burrill, Wichita, Kan.; Fred T. Whaley, Duluth, Minn.; C. J. Wheatland, Chicago; F. F. Thayer, Clinton, Ia.; E. B. Price, Louisville, Ky.; F. M. Thompson, Al F. Jamison and J. J. Fahey of Kansas City, Mo., and A. W. Parry of Chicago.

Because of the rain the sightseeing trip planned for the women was postponed till tomorrow. This evening 400 girls will be given a talk on salesmanship in the retail bakery Speakers will be E. C. Johnson and Daniel P. Woolley.

Dr. H. E. Barnard of Chicago will be the principal speaker at tomorrow's session of the convention. In the forenoon there will be a card game for women in the State suite. In the afternoon Professor Erwin H. Schell of Harvard University will speak on "The Technique of Executive Control."

U. S. WANTS MEN TO CARE FOR AIR BEACONS

Men are wanted for light work and to go up in the air. That's one way of describing positions open under Uncle Sam's banner, as announced today at the Army Base.

Until Dec. 18 applications for airway mechanic will be received by the Civil Service Commission, the job being to supervise and maintain in good working order the flash beacons for guidance of air pilots, soon to be installed along the Boston New York air route.

Also, a special examination for appointment as second lieutenant, Army Air Corps, will be held during January.

TWO MEN ARE HELD FOR BREAK IN RESTAURANT

Thomas Tobin, 24, Cambridge, and John Costello, 29, of the South End, charged with breaking into the restaurant at No. 20 Marshall street, North End, and with being in possession of burglar's tools, were today held by Judge Creed for the grand jury. Tobin's bail was fixed at $2,500 and the other was held in the sum of $5,000.

DAUGHERTY IS CALLED IN FALL TRIAL

Washington, Nov. 30.—Harry M. Daugherty, former Attorney-General of the United States, and himself under indictment on a conspiracy charge, was called to the witness stand today in the Fall-Doheny oil case.

Daugherty was called to testify concerning the part taken by the Department of Justice in connection with the Elk Hills naval oil reserves and the Pearl Harbor naval base. He said he never had been asked for an opinion on the legality of the proposed contracts and leases.

"MATTER OF RECORD."

As a matter of fact, Daugherty said, he did not know such leases and contracts ever had come to the Department of Justice in any way. He added that he did not know Doheny.

The government objected to Daugherty's answering a general question as to the usual custom in legal procedure within the departments. The court overruled the objection and the witness told of the process through which departmental questions came to the Attorney-General when they did.

He said every opinion he ever had rendered as Attorney-General was a matter of record in the Department of Justice, bearing his own signature He never had been asked for a "curbstone" opinion on the oil leasing negotiations in a Cabinet meeting, he said.

Daugherty's cross-examination was punctuated with frequent and vigorous objection from the prosecution table. All general attempts to penetrate Cabinet discussions were overruled.

Frank J. Hogan of Doheny counsel asked Daugherty if he recalled Fall having asked him in a Cabinet meeting in 1922 if the law of June 4, 1920, under which the Doheny contracts had been made, was "all right."

"I do not think so," Daugherty said. "It may have occurred, but you know a lot of water has gone over the dam since that time and I cannot be sure of every conversation I held as Attorney-General."

"But you don't remember such a conversation with Fall?" Hogan persisted.

"No, sir."

Albert B. Fall, ex-Secretary of the Interior, tried unsuccessfully to discharge his $100,000 obligation to E. L. Doheny before the transaction became known to the Senate investigating committee, it was testified today by Fall's son-in-law, C. C. Chase.

Chase, a witness in the trial of Fall and Doheny for alleged conspiracy to defraud the government in oil leases, testified that in November of 1923 Fall endeavored to obtain a loan of $100,000 from Price McKinney of Cleveland, but without success.

G. W. Holland, geologist of the Interior Department, identified documents from the department's files which both sides presented in evidence.

FALL IN TOUCH.

On direct examination, he submitted first in behalf of the prosecution bids of several oil companies for the Pearl Harbor oil storage plant in Hawaii, the contract for which ultimately was awarded Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company. He also presented correspondence between Fall and E. C. Finney, assistant secretary of the interior, during Fall's western trip in December, 1921.

This correspondence was presented by the governmnt in support of its contention that Fall was personally in touch with all departmental transactions involving oil reserve leases.

Hub Youth Guilty of Robbery

Springfield, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Three young persons who pleaded guilty to robbery of $350 from George W. Dowling of this city, recently, were sent to the reformatory in district court today. They are Angelo Massey of Lawrence, Alesio Salvatore of Boston and Miss Lillian Superneau of this city.

'TEN GALLON HAT' LAWYER FORCED TO WEAR TIE

Washington, Nov. 30 (A.P.)—Sid White, the "cowboy lawyer" of Okemah, Okla., met his Waterloo today before the Supreme Court.

Wearing a ten-gallon hat, shirt open at the neck and minus necktie he appeared as an applicant for permission to practice before the court His friend, Attorney-General Short of Oklahoma, who was present, arranged the preliminaries, but the absence of a tie was something else again.

No one had ever appeared before the highest court without a tie, was the reply to the cowboy lawyer's protests, but his objections were overcome when it came to the ultimatum "no tie, no admission."

SOLFATARA ACTIVE FOR FIRST TIME SINCE 1198

Naples, Nov. 30 (A.P.)—The semi-extinct volcano Solfatara, at Pozzuoli, near here, is showing signs of unusual activity. Experts believe this is due to the eruption of Mount Vesuvius, the two craters being members of the same chain of mountains.

Immense clouds of sulphurous vapor are issuing from a number of fissures surrounding the crater. The only recorded eruption of Solfatara was in the year 1198. The activity of Vesuvius is gradually diminishing.

SHIPPED-IN FARM GOODS HURT ROADSIDE STANDS

Approximately 97 per cent. of farm products sold at roadside stands is grown locally, a preliminary survey made by the State Department of Agriculture discloses.

"The other three per cent. comes from all over the country," the report states. "It includes Maine potatoes, Georgia peaches, Southern strawberries, New Jersey sweet potatoes, Western eggs, and even in this year of low apple prices, some Western apples.

The department finds that the three per cent. sales are having a decidedly bad effect on the public and that steps to protect the buyers from "shipped-in" products, often week-end leftovers, must be taken soon.

Legitimate farmers, the department declares, complain that the roadside business is being hurt by the sale of shipped-in stuff and that consumers are becoming suspicious of all stands.

FIND BOY WHO SAW MEDFORD MURDER

was purchased originally is in Jamaica Plain, Roxbury and Brighton.

Investigators, including State Detectives Sherlock and O'Neil, and Sergeant Buffum of the Medford force, are still making a hunt in Somerville and Chelsea where one of the hold-up youths is believed to live. Arthur O'Brien, taxi-driver, has given a Charlestown clew, reporting that he carried a hatless youth from Magoun square, Somerville, to Pearl street on the murder night.

Facing poverty when all bills are paid, Mrs. Margaret Monagle, widow of the slain man, appealed to the police to spare no efforts to round up the murderers. Surrounded by her four children in the home in Bennett street, Medford, from which the body of Monagle will be taken tomorrow morning for burial at Oak Grove, she said:

"What is the world coming to, if men like these murderers can roam at large? I hope they will be caught and punished, for although that cannot bring me back my husband, nor return to my children their father and only provider, still it will prevent them from doing the same cowardly thing again and again."

Funeral services for the slain market man will be held at St. Clement's Church. Nuns attached to the St. Clement's parochial school visited the sorrowful home in Bennett street today to console the bereft family, especially fourteen-year-old Mary, a pupil at the school, who saw the slaying and was fired upon by the thugs.

NORRIS LEADS FIGHT TO BAR VARE FROM SENATE

Washington, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—Plans were being drawn at the Capitol today to contest the seat of William S. Vare, Republican senator-elect from Pennsylvania.

Senator Norris (R.), of Nebraska, who spoke in Pennsylvania against Vare, has advised William B. Wilson, defeated Democratic candidate, to file a formal contest charging illegality in the election. Wilson has not yet replied to Norris' suggestion. If illegality were proved, Vare could be denied his seat by a majority vote.

Prince George in Canada

20 SALESMEN FACING COURT

Steps to cite for contempt of court a score of cash register salesmen, operating in Massachusetts, were taken in Federal District Court today with the issue of subpoenas for witnesses at the request of Asst. U. S. Attorney General John L. Lott.

The contempt proceedings, according to Lott, have arisen out of the alleged violation by the salesmen of an injunction issued against their firm by the U. S. District Court at Cincinnati in 1915, restraining it from "knocking" the products of competitors.

Testimony of the witnesses here tomorrow will be taken by Miss Bess M. Colling, special examiner for the U. S. District Court of Ohio, who will proceed to Springfield immediately after her task is finished in Boston.

Due to the fact that 90 salesmen in all, scattered over the United States are defendants in the contempt action, the government decided to bring the court to the witnesses to save their time and expenses.

ACCEPT COTTON MILL MERGER

Merger plans for consolidating the Massachusetts Cotton Mills of Lowell with the Pepperell Manufacturing Company, as proposed by the trustees and directors of both corporations, were accepted today by stockholders of the former.

The combined companies will, it was announced, have quick assets of $13,000,000 as against liabilities of $2,500,000. Pepperell stockholders have voted to increase their capital stock by 33,328 shares to provide the 31,250 new shares necessary to complete the merger.

For the fiscal year ended June 30 this company showed net profit of $616,530, compared with a loss of $412,056 for the previous year.

LYMAN B. TEFFT, 93, IS DEAD

Providence, Nov 30 (A.P.).—Rev. Lyman Beecher Tefft, dean of Brown Alumni, preacher, author and educator and known as the oldest Brown graduate, is dead at his home in Cranston after an illness of less than two weeks. On July 15 Mr. Tefft observed his 93rd birthday.

Mr. Tefft was graduated from the Rochester Theological Seminary in 1860. He held Baptist pastorates in Prescott, Wis., Winona, Minn., and Norwich, Ct., during the early nineties.

He was the author of a number of books, one of which was "Institutes of Moral Philosophy." He was twice married, his first wife, who was Susan H. Ham of Lawrence, Mass., having died in 1870. His second wife was Miss Emma Thurber Brown of Providence, who died in 1894.

Clearing the Road to Heaven, Pays City $32 Poll Tax

Wishing to leave this world with a clean slate, a citizen of Boston today sent a postal money order to City Collector George H. Johnson for $32 in payment of back poll taxes.

The money order was filed at Boston, Station 64, and the sender apparently was troubled by a guilty conscience when he wrote:

"I am sending you money that I owe the city for poll taxes of years ago which I did not pay on account of wrong living. I wish to leave this world with as clean a slate as I can. Enclosed find $32 order."

Collector Johnson will credit the money to the City Conscience Fund, which each year totals about $500.

WANT STATE TO GIVE AIRPORT

Agitation for the immediate transfer of the Boston airport by the Commonwealth to the City of Boston was urged upon members of the Advertising Club of Boston by Lt. Commander Porter H. Adams, president of the National Aeronautic Society, at today's weekly luncheon of advertising men at the Bellevue hotel.

A picture of the airport buzzing with activity, with huge rigid ships swinging from mooring masts, giant transoceanic planes debarking their passengers with a five-minute ride of the East Boston tunnel, army and navy and private planes hovering in the air, and all adding to the commercial prosperity of the city, was painted by the speaker.

"The Boston airport is the most ideal of any that I have seen in any part of the United States," Adams said.

"With adequate bus service to the East Boston tunnel it can be brought within seven minutes' ride of the heart of Boston. Fields sponsored by other great cities are almost inaccessible to them. Mitchel Field and the adjoining Curtiss Field, which serve New York, are an hour's ride from the city. Boston's field has the great advantage of being within the city limits, within easy reach and adaptable equally for land and seaplane landings, and as a terminal for rigid ships which the near future will provide for passenger service.

"The existence of the port is due to the patriotism of citizens of Boston of the type of Irving Bullard and others who have given of their time and their money for its development. Under the present control, with title vested in the State, it is legally impossible for the most interested party, the City of Boston, to expend funds from its treasury in developing this great commercial asset.

"Mayor Nichols was refused a request which he made to be allowed to spend $25,000 in the development of the port. Mayor Curley went somewhat outside the law to run water service to the field and to do some grading. The army has money which it will spend in permanent improvements, likewise the navy, as soon as the question of control is settled satisfactorily."

Major P. F. O'Keefe, president of the Advertising Club, told of plans for a Christmas dinner to be given to poor children by the club at the Copley-Plaza Hotel on Christmas Day. Guests at today's luncheon included officials of the airport and representatives of the aviation service of the army.

FREUDIANISM 'GREATEST FOE OF RELIGION'

A new form of atheism, associated with Freudianism, the doctrine of psycho-analysis, is now religion's greatest foe, declared Dr. Everett Carlton Herrick today in his inaugural address as president of Newton Theological Institution.

"It has reduced the ancient condition called sin, not to the semi-virtue of error, but to a psychological cross-circuit of our complexes," he said. "It is rising like a menacing tide.

"We catch its phrases all about us, sometimes in philosophic garb, sometimes plain animalistic paganism. It has developed a twilight zone of ultra-Freudianism where wish has supplanted will."

The trouble with most ministers, said Dr. Herrick at the inaugural exercises which were held in the presence of more than 1,000 persons at the First Baptist Church, Newton Centre, is that they are "more holy than human."

"One of the purposes of our institution is to teach familiarity with people and sympathetic understanding of life in the twentieth century," he said. "There is ever a useful life open to a minister who is a man among men."

President Daniel L. Marsh of Boston University, President W. H. P. Faunce of Brown, prominent Baptist clergymen, heads of theological schools and others were among those in attendance at the inauguration exercises which were followed by a luncheon at the Newton Centre Women's Club and further exercises after the luncheon.

A reception to President Herrick and Mrs. Herrick will be tendered this evening at the church. Former President Nathan E. Wood of the institution; Albert L. Scott, chairman of the board of trustee. Rev. Hugh A. Heath of Newton, representative of the Massachusetts Baptist Convention, and Rev. Otis W. Foye of Dorchester, president of the Northern Baptist Educational Society, took part in the inauguraton ceremonies.

SEES DANGER TO CHURCHES

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Warning that intellectual and spiritual leadership is in danger of being lost in the vast machinery of modern church life was sounded by President Clifton D. Gray of Bates College in an address at the Hartford Seminary Foundation here today.

"That the tendency is to lay more stress upon methods and machinery than upon the Message; that the modern preacher is losing the note of authority and that the preachers are too often mere entertainers, are the results of multifarious activities of the modern church, which make adequate preparation for the pulpit almost an impossibility," he declared.

Saying that one cannot expect to have ignorance in the preaching and intelligence in the congregation, President Gray went on, "For years we have been ordaining at least five men either without any theological education or else a perverted education where we have ordained one who has been trained in college or seminary, or both."

ACTS RICH ROLE FOR 7 WEEKS

New York, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.)—The seven weeks of luxury as a "millionaire" enjoyed by William Roddel, 43, former elevator operator in the Capitol Theatre building, came to an end today in his sumptuously furnished apartment when police arrested him in connection with a $156,000 forgery on the Equitable Trust Company.

With Roddel when he was taken into custody was Nancy Kirby, an extremely pretty girl of nineteen, who was held as a material witness. Roddel told police that his part in the crime was the obtaining of the special checks used by the Capitol, with copies of signatures.

He was the dupe of a man who did the actual forging, Roddel stated, according to the police, and received only $1,500.

EFFORT TO STOP CANADA STRIKE

Montreal, Que., Nov. 30 (A.P.)—Railway executives and labor representatives will resume negotiations immediately in an attempt to settle amicably the wage demands of the 15,000 conductors and trainmen employed on Canadian lines, it was learned from reliable sources today.

The men, who recently voted a strike ballot, are seeking a 6 per cent. wage increase.

WITNESS TWICE COLLAPSES IN WILL CASE

Fainting once on the stand, then again in a swoon so deep court officers could not revive him, Minot Harwood halted today in Middlesex Probate Court the hearing on the will of the late Benjamin S. Gibbs of Reading, 83-year-old Civil War veteran.

Relatives of one of Gibbs' daughters by a first marriage charge that his will, leaving the $30,000 estate to the widow and son of a second marriage, is illegal, inasmuch as he never obtained a divorce before marrying a second time.

The widow and son of the second marriage are Mrs. Mary Gibbs, 81, of Reading, and George Gibbs.

WIFE IS DEAD.

Principal contestant in the suit it the husband of Mrs. Annie Pinter (deceased) of Worcester, one of the two daughters of Gibbs' first marriage.

The other daughter, Carrie, is dead, and the wife of the first marriage, also named Mary, and who was revealed today to have been married three times in all, has died since the death of Gibbs last April.

Harwood is a son of the first Mrs. Gibbs' third marriage, he testified today in the hearing. He said his mother had never obtained a divorce, but evidence was introduced later to show that the second husband—one Phipps—had died before the Harwood marriage.

SWOONS SECOND TIME.

It was while he was being questioned on his mother's marital affairs that Harwood slumped down in a faint.

Court suspended while he was revived, and he again took the stand, only to faint again, this time going beyond the lay efforts of the court officers, who finally were forced to call a doctor.

The widow of the second marriage had testified that she married Gibbs on April 6, 1878, after her father had asked him to produce divorce papers and Gibbs had done so.

They lived in South Boston and Milton and her husband took frequent trips away. He was never gone more than three days at a time, she said.

Gibbs had told of his first marriage and of two children resulting, the widow testified, but never intimated he had visited his first wife again.

When Judge Leggat remarked here that it seemed futile to go on with the case unless a certificate of divorce could be produced, Mrs. Gibbs said that in those days divorces were granted by the Supreme Court which moved from county to county.

PAPERS LOST IN FIRE.

The original papers handed by Gibbs to her father, she said, were lost in a fire years ago.

Mrs. Evelyn Gibbs, daughter-in-law, said the Civil War veteran, in a casual conversation seven years ago, told her he had married the most beautiful girl in Nantucket as his first wife, but that they had failed to get along and he obtained a divorce.

Pinter testified he first saw Gibbs in Worcester in 1907, when Gibbs went there to meet his daughter Annie for the first time since she was a baby.

Gibbs then had not seen his first wife since 1875, but when he met her at the daughter's home again, the veteran declared he wished he could spend the rest of his days with her, according to the witness.

At that time, Pinter testified, Gibbs admitted having married again without first being divorced, and begged them not to make trouble for him. He told his first wife:

"Let me alone and when I die—I haven't long to live—you can have my Civil War pension."

FARLEY ON TRIAL IN CAMBRIDGE SLAYING

The jury chosen for the trial of George C. Farley, formerly of Cambridge, charged with the murder of Eugene Crawford, today visited the Cambridge plant of the Atwood-McManus Box Company where, the government alleges, Farley shot Crawford after an argument on July 13.

When the jurors returned to Middlesex Court Assistant District Attorney Warren L. Bishop outlined the case. Francis J. Driscoll, superintendent, testified Crawford worked in the factory two years and that Farley was employed there two months. Dr. Atilio Zanelli, of Cambridge Hospital, testified Crawford was unconscious when taken there and died July 18.

GULL HITS LIVE WIRE; ELECTRIC POWER SHUT OFF

Middletown, Ct., Nov. 30.—A collision between a huge sea gull and a high-tension wire brought death to the bird, which measured three feet from tip to tip. The accident shut off the electric power in all parts of Middlesex County.

The sea gull hit a sagging wire carrying 13,000 volts. The force of the attack drove the wire against another high-tension wire and the electric service came to a standstill.

The bird was found on the ground, two large holes burned beneath the wings.

BOY CAUGHT IN BOSTON PLEADS GUILTY OF BREAK

Attleboro, Nov. 30 (A.P.)—Admitting a break at a North Attleboro shoe store, James Davern, nineteen, arrested after a chase in the West End of Boston yesterday when a police bullet hit his knee, pleaded guilty in the District Court today and was bound over in $6,000 for the Grand Jury. Pawtucket and Chelsea police also have charges to prefer against him.

Fugitive Banker Caught

Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.)—Julius Merchacz, former employe of the South Side Savings Bank of New York, was arrested today, charged with embezzlement of $30,000 from the bank. He had $15,000 in his possession.

QUINCY VOTERS SWAMP POLLS IN PRIMARY

Polls opening at noon today in Quincy's non-partisan preliminary election for Mayor and city councillors were fairly swamped by voters despite the heavy rain. It is expected that the figures in today's fight may compare with those reached in the State election.

Five mayoral candidates for two places on the final ballot, and thirteen entries for the six places on the city councillors' list are being voted on today. The final ballot will be voted on December 21.

Former Mayor Joseph L. Whiton, Charles A. Ross, president of the City Council; former City Solicitor John D. Mackay, Councillor John J. McGrath and Forrest I. Neil are mayorality candidates. They were among the first voters today.

By a special order, the polls will remain open until 9 tonight.

LETTERS TO FUND EDITOR BARE URGENT NEED OF AID

If you were a young child and expected Santa Claus was going to bring you all sorts of nice toys and you also expected to have a big turkey dinner, wouldn't it jar you if Kris Kringle completely forgot you, and your Christmas dinner consisted only of beans?

Well, that's just what happened to a little Cambridge boy living on Holworthy street, according to a letter he wrote to the Christmas Goodfellow Editor of the Boston Evening American. He is hoping for better things this year.

Can you imagine the feelings of this boy when he went back to school the day after Christmas last year, listening to his playmates telling about all the gifts they received and what a lovely dinner they had? Here is what the little Cambridge boy wrote:

"Dear Santa Claus:

"I will be so glad if you will send me a few toys for Christmas. My father cannot work, as he is sick in bed, so please send me something for Christmas. Last year I didn't have anything and we just had beans for dinner, so I didn't have a good Christmas at all. There are eleven in my family. Please send me something so I can enjoy Christmas this year.

Pretty tough to sit down to beans on Christmas Day! Don't you think so, too, Christmas Goodfellow? Aren't you going to see to it that this little Cambridge boy will fare better at Yuletide this season?

ONE OF HUNDREDS.

He is only one of hundreds of little boys and girls who have written from all parts of New England appealing for assistance. These letters, with many from disheartened, long-suffering mothers, who are worried because of inability to properly feed and clothe their children, are now on file at the Boston Evening American office, for distribution to Christmas Goodfellows who desire to extend a helping hand.

Won't you care for at least one family? If so, write NOW, and we will give you the name and address of an impoverished family in your own district.

ATTEND ENTERTAINMENTS.

For really busy people who haven't sufficient time at Christmas to even accomplish their own programs, we have an alternative in the form of a Christmas Goodfellow Fund, to which they may contribute, we acting as agent in the expenditure of every cent contributed, and in distributing substantial food, clothing, medicine, fuel, etc., to needy families.

There is a third way in which Christmas Goodfellows may aid, and that is by attending one or more of the entertainments planned in behalf of the Fund, which include a Sunday night concert and vaudeville show in Shubert Theatre, December 12; a bridge whist and dance in the main ballroom of Hotel Kenmore on Monday evening December 13, and a charity ball in the new Elks Hotel ballroom, Boston, opposite the Metropolitan Theatre, on Wednesday evening, December 15.

Tickets for these three events, as well as several other affairs which have been planned, may be obtained by communicating with the Christmas Goodfellow Editor of this newspaper

J. J. Doherty of No. 9 Mystic street, Charlestown, who is planning an entertainment and dancing party to be given in Winter Garden ballroom City Square, Charlestown, has gathered a committee of leading Charlestown men and women to assist him in making the event successful.

Free use of the Winter Garden ball room was given by its proprietors, Harry Roberts and Louis Banker, who are thereby elected Christmas Goodfellows.

Among those who are on the committee assisting Mr. Doherty are the following: City Councilor Thomas H. Green, former Representative William H. Winnett, Henry P. Walsh, Thomas Powell, J. A. Ryan, John Lyons, Michael Doherty, former Senator James B. Brennan, Representative John P. Buckley, Representative Charles S. Sullivan, Jr., Judge Charles S. Sullivan, Robert E. Lee, Mrs. Charles S. Sullivan, former Congressman Peter F. Tague, former Representative William Prendergast, former Senator William Francis, John G. Murphy, Peter A. Donavon, Robert Brennan, P. J. McArdle, Roy Green, Henry Myers, James Anderson, Gene Mehegan, John F. O'Brien, Nellie E. Murphy, Mrs. Sadie Fitzgerald, Mrs. Francis Houlihan, Mrs. Betty Smith, Mrs. May Frederickson, Mrs. Betty Smith, Mrs. May Frederickson, Mrs. Betty Ryder, Mrs. Catherine Doherty, Mrs. Nona Bowman, Miss Jane Woods, Mrs. Shea, Miss Rose Lehan.

Members of the following clubs are co-operating with the committee: Morning Glories, Tremont Club, Northern Club, Harvard Club, Hayes Square Outing Club, Somerset Club, Siebert A. C., Munroe Ladies Club, Widow and Widowers Club, Jackson Club, Lechmere Social Club, Roxbury Red Sox, Charlestown Community Club, Arthur V. Sullivan Associates and Andrew Square Associates.

General Manager Paul Snyder, and Sales Manager Irving G. Clark, of the Boston Flint Company have been elected Christmas Goodfellows as a result of contributing the free use of one of the company's classiest cars for necessary work connected with the Christmas Goodfellow Fund. The car used is one of the new model "Sixty" touring cars. The flexibility with which the car operates in heavy traffic is one of the outstanding features of its performance. Another important feature is its four-wheel hydraulic brakes, by means of which the operator is able to stop the machine within less than its own length at any speed.

SENATOR COPELAND FOR 4 PER CENT. BEER

New York, Nov. 29 (A.P.).—U. S. Senator Royal S. Copeland, Democrat, hitherto listed politically as a Dry, announced that henceforth he would espouse the cause of modification.

Senator Copeland, a physician, thinks that 4 per cent. beer would not be intoxicating. He is assembling the latest medical data on the matter with the idea of introducing a bill in Congress. And so far as his close affiliation with the Methodist Episcopal church is concerned, he says he is willing to burn all his bridges behind him if necessary in this matter.

G. O. P. VICTORY HOLLOW

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Correspondent.

Washington, Nov. 30.—Election of Arthur R. Gould as Republican Senator from Maine means that the Republican party will be able to organize the Senate of the Seventieth Congress by the narrow margin of a single vote.

Actually, however, the Republican victory in Maine means very little, if anything, insofar as actual or working control of the next Senate is concerned.

The lineup stands today:
Republicans—48.
Democrats—47.
Farmer-Labor—1.

Actual control, if any, rests more with the Democrats than with the Republicans, despite the figures, for included in the Republican total of 48 are fully a dozen Senators who as often vote with the Democrats as against them. There are perhaps half a dozen who vote oftener against the administration than with it.

LaFollette and Blaine in Wisconsin, Frazier and Nye in North Dakota, Norris and Howell in Nebraska, Johnson in California, Norbeck and McMaster in South Dakota, Borah in Idaho, Couzens in Michigan—they are impervious and contemptuous of party discipline and the party whip. They vote with the Republicans on organization matters, but on legislation they are independent.

GIPSY WEDDING RITES LEGAL, COURT RULES

New York, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—A marriage by gipsy rites is binding, Magistrate Corrigan decided today in dismissing charges of assault against Samuel Ranko, 19-year-old gipsy, who was married by his tribal king at Fall River, to Lena Stokes, 14-year-old daughter of John Stokes of New York.

The charge was brought by the girl's father, but Alexander Ranko, father of the bridegroom, testified that it was the result of the youth's paying Stokes only $1,000 of a promised $1,500.

COOLIDGE HOPES CONGRESS WILL AID RADIO FANS

Washington, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—President Coolidge only infrequently listens in on the radio receiving set at the White House, but Mrs. Coolidge is an ardent radio fan.

Almost every evening while at her knitting, Mrs. Coolidge turns on the set.

This was revealed by the President today in discussing radio legislation with callers. He expressed the hope that Congress would take steps to clarify the radio situation.

CRISTY ADMITS HE FIRED SHOT IN DEATH TRY

Worcester, Nov. 30.—Battling for life, but retaining the stoicism that marked him for 35 years as one of the most determined fighting editors in New England, Austin Phelps Cristy, former owner of the Worcester Telegram, admitted calmly today that he fired the shot that nearly killed him.

The 76-year-old colorful figure crumpled up in his broker's office yesterday an instant after a shot rang out. He had sent a bullet into his left breast in an alleged attempt at suicide.

Today he was declared to have an even chance for life. While his age militates against him, his dogged determination to live—for he has regretted his shot and has declared his intent to fight off death—may pull him through, it was said at the City Hospital today.

Family and shocked friends were at a loss today to determine a motive for the elderly publisher's act.

Declarations that he had lost money in stock trading were waved aside when his brokers asserted that there had been no such losses.

Dr. Ernest L. Hunt, in an effort to clear up any possibility of accident in the shooting, asked Editor Cristy at the hospital if anyone else had anything to do with his injury.

"No one else," the editor said crisply and closed his eyes again.

SEEK THUG WHO HIT WOMAN IN STORE

While Mrs. James Colbert was reported in serious condition today after a thug knocked her unconscious and stole several hundred dollars from her store at No. 323 Warren street, Roxbury, Inspector Joseph E. Rollins, headquarters fingerprint expert, searched the shop for clues.

The Warren street store is also a sub-postoffice. When the thief entered he bought 50 two-cent stamps and while Mrs. Colbert was making change he struck her on the head with a blunt instrument. She was found a half hour later still unconscious.

She gave police a good description of her assailant. Inspector Rollins was unable to find any fingerprints about the safe or cash box.

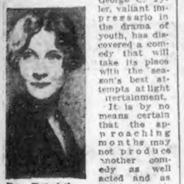
WHIRLWIND OF JOY IS 'TOMMY' AT PARK

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

WHETHER you believe in signs or just consider them something to be read and forgotten, is a matter of personal taste. But taking signs as you caught them at the Park Theatre, George C. Tyler, valiant impresario in the drama of youth, has discovered a comedy that will take its place with the season's best attempts at light entertainment.



Peg Entwistle

It is by no means certain that the approaching months may not produce another comedy as well acted and as deliciously satisfying as "Tommy," but if this ambitious effort to make the playgoer happy is equalled, or excelled, some very lively travelling must be done.

Kind words for budding authors always is in good taste and in the case of Howard Lindsay and Bertrand Robinson, the twin creators of "Tommy," anything short of spacious exaltation would be indecent. The boys made their first experiment a whirlwind of joy.

Incidentally, Mr. Tyler appears to have torn a leaf from the John Golden cook book of safe recipes for the family drama. Rich comedy without a taint flowed through the evening. There was life and bold situations, family bickerings, a little inside politics and as spirited a love affair as ever crept into a manuscript.

"Tommy" was smart without being flip; its family disturbances were laugh teasers of sure-fire variety. The love triangle of a nice girl and two nice boys, miserably mangled by family interference, left you at the end with aching sides and a determination to see "Tommy" again.

In its characterizations "Tommy" was abundant and brilliant. Lloyd Neal and Maidel Turner made the Thurber household a hotbed of argument and recrimination; Sidney Toler adroitly played the role of a Mr. Fix-it and kept the story at fever heat; Peg Entwistle, late of Mr. Jewett's Repertory company, was the winsome maid with more than passing success, and William Janney and Alan Bunce revealed youths of grim determination and a great desire for conquest.

The nineteen-year-old Janney turned in a performance artistically far in excess of his years. He more than held his own with the seasoned veterans beside him, and, with his very excellent companions, made "Tommy" the most exhilarating comedy of the year.

IRISH FILM DRAWS BIG AT FINE ARTS THEATRE

"Irish Destiny," film epic of Erin, made entirely in the Emerald Isle by Irish players, continues to unreel itself before interested audiences at the Fine Arts Theatre.

It is a chronicle of the World War from the standpoint of Irish participation, and intermingled with the absorbing action is a tender romance to add further zest.

TEASING TEMPTRESS LURES HER VICTIM

GLAMOROUS AMOURS

ROBERTS HEADS KEITH BILL

By the ovation accorded Theodore Roberts, "grand old man of the movies," at a personal appearance at Keith's Theatre, it would seem that movie fans prefer their heroes better off the screen.

By special permission of Jesse L. Lasky, the character actor who probably has won more sympathy and love of the public than any matinee idol, appears in a gripping sketch entitled "The Man Higher Up." The famous cigar, the quick little mannerisms, the amusing wink, are all in evidence in the play. His admirers enjoyed famous facial expressions quite as much as though they were watching him in a close-up on the screen.

He takes the role of a noted brain specialist, who for 30 years has lived and labored for revenge on the man who robbed him of his sweetheart and brought disgrace to her. "The Man" comes to the doctor for treatment, little realizing his identity. The doctor lays a clever trap and the unsuspecting victim is caught. Death timely takes the stranger in the office, thereby saving the doctor from murder and solves the problem of revenge.

Marie Marion and Nelson Clifford got many laughts in a skit entitled "Just Dumb." Others who added their share to the program were Steppe and Knowles; Van Horn and Iney, Roller skate artists who did some highly original swivel neck-spins; Steve Freda and Johnny Palace and the Lorraine Sisters in dance act.

Coming Events

Ben Lyon in "The Prince of Tempters" will be the film feature at the Metropolitan, starting next Saturday.

Helen Hayes in a popular revival of "What Every Woman Knows" will take the stage at the Plymouth next Monday.

The Porte St. Martin Dramatic Company of Paris will occupy the Boston Opera House next week.

"The Adding Machine" will employ the talents of the Repertory Theatre company next week.

"Tons of Money" will be presented by Mr. Clive's players at the Copley next week.

KURENKO WELL RECEIVED IN CONCERT

By MOSES SMITH

Maria Kurenko, the Russian coloratura soprano who first sang here last season, was heard in a joint concert with Louis Cornell, Boston pianist, at Symphony Hall last night. Mme. Kurenko sang three groups of songs and many extra numbers in response to the applause of a rather small but very friendly audience.

The singer was fully as pleasing as on her previous appearance. Again the listeners had a chance to hear a coloratura voice with unusually sound lower and middle tones, and a very happy talent for lyricism. In her Russian songs Mme. Kurenko was at her best, for in them, particularly in an air from a Moussorgsky opera, she let herself go and sang with dramatic feeling and rhythmic fervor.

The first group of songs, from Handel to Bellini, was rendered in excellent voice, but the style was not sufficiently varied. In the Bellini aria, "Qui la voce" from "Puritani," Mme. Kurenko displayed a coloratura technique and mastery of old Italian singing that was quite astonishing, especially when followed by the altogether different music of Moussorgsky.

Mr. Cornell, though teaching in Boston, has not been heard in concert here in years. For those who were listening to him for the first time it was unfortunate that the pianist should have been troubled by nervousness or some similar external factor. He has a fluent technique, and can very likely do himself greater justice under happier circumstances.

LOVE 'EM AND LEAVE 'EM AT CASTLE SQUARE

With two more additions to the already brilliant cast at the Castle Square Theatre, "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em," entered the hearts of the first nighters at that playhouse, last night, with a promise of a laughful week for the patrons.

The story, centered on the love affairs of two typical sisters, employes at a department store, allows the authors a wide scope for the insertion of comedy.

Adelyn Bushnell, leading woman, playing her second week at the house, holds the principal role as Mamie Walsh, hard-boiled store-worker of the old school, and sister of the flapper, gold-digging type, who vamps the entire store organization, capping the climax with an auto ride in the company of the august head of the firm.

NEW OPERETTA THRILLS AT SHUBERT

In a profusion of sweet sounds Arthur Hammerstein's musical play, "Song of the Flame," opened at the Shubert last night.

And operetta, newly rekindled for the patient playgoer, blazed in brilliance as this lustiest of choruses—"Student Prince" not forgotten, either—piled up the melodies of the gorgeous Stothart-Gershwin score.

Tessa Kosta

To compare this singing with anything previously heard in the American theatre is about as useless as mentioning the Podunk Choral Society and the Metropolitan Opera chorus in the same breath. There is at least that difference in the power of these voices—all Russians, the world's best choral singers.

Whether in thundering ensembles, softly echoing cadences or hummed accompaniment to the songs of the principals, these Russians amazed their audience and easily became the greatest feature of a great production. At one point they simply sat as a choir, and it was a long time before the show could pick itself up and go on.

In rather wan contrast to the excellence of scenic and vocal execution, the book of Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein fetched up far in the rear of the score. It toyed aimlessly with the Russian Revolution in the first act and in the second suddenly took a long leap to Paris for no earthly reason.

But a near perfection of staging and a superb performance made this something to be quickly forgotten. You will remember "Song of the Flame" for the singing—nothing else matters.

Lifting high and clear voices in the solo parts, Tessa Kosta and Guy Robertson appealed to the heart as well as to the eye and ear. In lighter moments, comedy flowed over the stage — under forced draught, to be sure—but in the hands of Betty Byron, Bernard Gorcey and Shep Camp it was ever steered straight.

For those who like music in volume, the glittering caparison of operetta and Slavic vitality in the ensembles, "Song of the Flame" becomes an event in a lifetime.

'Barbara Worth' Is Gem of Western Films

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

CHICAGO, NOV. 30.—It does not take the brain of a Plato nor the wisdom of a Solomon to analyze the tremendous vogue of Harold Bell Wright's love story, "The Winning of Barbara Worth." The love of romance and the spirit of pioneer adventure deep in the soul of all men gave Mr. Wright's melodramatic yarn a selling value before it was scarcely off the press.

The very thing that promised this enormous popularity to the novel assures it to Samuel Goldwyn's movies.

And before I so much as write a word for or against this Western drama let me go on record as saying it is the type of entertainment, that any exhibitor who wishes to fill his theatre will book without a moment's hesitation.

"The Winning of Barbara Worth," when all has been said and done, is essentially a story of and for the West. How the West will love seeing the desert wastelands blossom into fruitful valleys with any actual picturization of what really takes place in this miracle country.

Vilma Banky

I THOUGHT WHEN I LOOKED AT SAMUEL GOLDWYN'S drama of the desert with its ever-present suggestion of stifling heat, that it was a good picture to present in Chicago at a time when sleet and ice and snow penetrates one's thickest clothing.

VILMA BANKY IS ONE OF THOSE ADAPTABLE ACTRESSES who invests every role she plays with her own particular individuality. In other words, from now on she will be the author's conception of Barbara Worth, the desert waif left by her dying mother to grow up as a defender of the great West.

Miss Banky's beauty has not made any difference in the quality ot her performance. In other words she is not only lovely to look at but she is a pleasing actress with no disturbing mannerisms and an ability that grows with each picture.

THRILLS MARK THE GORILLA

"The Gorilla," a weird serio-comic mystery play, now at Waldron's Casino and gave two capacity audiences a combination of thrills and laughs. The play is ludicrously funny at times, and yet is as full of thrills as the boldest of melodramas.

The plot contains a master mind, known as "The Gorilla," who threatens the tenant of a haunted house. It also contains a playwright who is in love with the tenant's niece, two detectives, a butler and a dead sailo.

'TEMPTRESS' FILM COMING

The wastes of the Mojave desert, transformed by transplanted vegetation into a South American pampas, is the locale for some of the most thrilling scenes in the Cosmopolitan production, "The Temptress," which begins an engagement next Monday at Loew's State, with a cast headed by Greta Garbo, Antonio Moreno, Lionel Barrymore, Marc MacDermott and Roy D'Aarcy.

D'Arcy, Moreno, and a body of "raiders" traveled to the desert location following the remarkable feat of landscape gardening by which it was made over into a portion of a South American plain. Daring feats of horsemanship and other details of the Argentine episode of the story were filmed on this location.

JOHN T. McNARY APPEARS IN CASTLE SQUARE SHOW

John T. McNary, former paymaster of the City of Boston, has resumed his first profession and gone on the stage. Mr. McNary has played with such stars as Charles Fetcher, Edwin Booth, Clara Morris and Fanny Davenport.

Mr. McNary made his comeback last night with the Castle Square Players in "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em."

RENEE ADOREE

DESERT RECLAMATION EPIC AT LOEW'S ORPHEUM

"The Winning of Barbara Worth," the famous story by Harold Bell Wright, is the current screen attraction at Loew's Orpheum.

Whether it is the story itself or the brilliant acting of Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky that makes this picture attractive, is difficult to state accurately. But suffice it to say that the combination of both stars and story prove that pictures like "Barbara Worth" are what the producers call "audience-satisfaction plays."

On the vaudeville program are six big time acts headed by Town Topics Revue, with Billy "Uke" Carpenter as the featured player. Others in the cast are Esther Singer, Gloria Claire, Mack Davis, Joe Rock, Aileen Coleman and Billy Perch. The act is a miniature musical comedy and proved perfect entertainment for the Orpheumites.

STAGE EMPLOYES' BALL TO BE GALA AFFAIR

A fountain of perfume with huge clusters of electric lights playing upon the bubbling scent, a symphonic orchestra of fifty pieces, conducted by Doc Eisenburg, and the greatest aggregation of stars which ever have twinkled in Mechanics Building will be some of the features of the sixth annual ball of the Theatrical Stage Employes on January 20.

The entire Mechanics Building will be given over to the ball. The grand march will begin on the stroke of 12. Practically every actor and actress of note then in the city will attend the ball.

FILM SHOWING HUNTERS IN ARCTIC FOR FENWAY

The first Boston showing of the film chronicle, "Alaskan Adventures," will take place at the Fenway Theatre next Saturday.

It is a detailed account of the adventures of Captain Jack Peterson the explorer, and Arthur Young, world's champion bow and arrow marksman, who set out across the Arctic rim carrying no other weapons than bows and arrows.

The experiences of the pair and their big game hunting exploits are shown against a background of some of the Northland's most exquisite scenery.

'BIG PARADE' PACKS HOUSE

Returning to Boston after a leave of absence, but bearing new distinction, the added glory of being chosen "the best picture of the year," King Vidor's spectacular production, "The Big Parade," filled the house at the Majestic last night.

It's a startlingly real screening of the Great War and for that reason this film epic is bound to attract a surprising number of those who saw it last Winter. In fact the "reopening night" had many a first-nighter who couldn't resist coming back.

John Gilbert's popularity, which grew to a great extent from his heroic yet human role in "The Big Parade," is easily understandable. Gilbert puts a fine lot of acting into his character, and manages to convey the spirit to the audience even without the medium of words.

As for the adorable Adoree—called Renee—she is just as sweet as ever. It does seem that many a doughboy who thought he had a "peach" Over There, gave an extra cheer for the heroine.

PIONEER FILM FEATURED ON LOEW'S STATE BILL

Like a vision of the past, the Western film epic, "Three Bad Men," opened at Loew's State yesterday and established itself as something that "will keep old folks from their Winter fire and children from their play."

Based on one of the most adventurous periods in American history it depicts the struggle and hardship of the first white settlers of the Sioux lands in the Dakotas and, for good measure, weaves in the golden threaded romance of two young pioneers, played by George O'Brien and Olive Borden.

The direction is in the practiced hands of John Ford, who made "The Iron Horse," and the supporting characters are enacted by a long list of players prominent in the films. Among them are Lou Tellegen, Phyllis Haver, and Otis Harlan. The colorful characters of the "three bad men" are skilfully played by J. Farrell McDonald Frank Campeau and Tom Santschi.

HUNT DARK STRANGLER IN DEATHS OF EIGHT WOMEN

Portland, Ore., Nov. 30 (A. P.).—Mrs. Blanche Myers, 48, was found strangled to death in her home here. A handkerchief was about her neck and the room bore evidence of a terrific struggle.

This is the third strangled to death here in the last few weeks and the eighth case of its kind on the Pacific coast in about seven months. Police from here to Central California are searching for a "dark strangler," who they believe is responsible for the killings.

DIAMONDS ARE BECOMING PLENTIFUL AS PEARLS

London, Nov. 30 (A. P.).—Diamonds soon will be as common as artificial pearls if the present unrestricted output from alluvial diggings continues, in the opinion of South African diamond magnates, says a dispatch to the Daily Express from Capetown.

The correspondent says the diamond mine owners are perturbed over the increasing output of stones from the alluvial diggings, where individual seekers are finding plenty and putting them on the market at prices below those charged by the De Beers syndicate.

Solomon B. Joel, Sir Ernest Oppenheimer and Sir Abe Bailey, mine owners, have arrived in Capetown from England with the hope of inducing the South African government to limit the alluvial output.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Footlights Club Observes Birthday With Performance of 'The Tempest'

THE FOOTLIGHT CLUB OF Jamaica Plain is about to celebrate a birthday. This fine and honored organization, torch bearer along the path of amateur dramatic achievement, has a splendid past of fifty years and a record of productions in unbroken series to a hoary one hundred and sixty-one. A perfectly splendid record, and to be fittingly celebrated.

"THE TEMPEST," comedy by one William Shakespeare, set for December 8, 9, 10 and 11, is the means whereby they celebrate. Dr. R. Kendrick Smith is Alphonso, King of Naples. Harry H. Gay, is Sebastian, his brother. William Stanley Parker is Prospero, the right Duke of Milan and Henry M. Goodrich is Antonio, the usurping Duke.

AND THUS FURTHER reads the cast: Ferdinand, George W. B. Hartwell; Gonzalo, an honest old Councellor, William O. Safford; Adrian, a young Lord ' Naples, Francis [illegible]ton, Francisco, also a young lord, Huntington White; Caliban, a savage and deformed slave, Frank B. Law er; Trinculo, a jester, Leon H. Zach; Ctephan, a butler, Charles E. Thayer; Master of a Ship, Henry H. Putnam; Boatswain, Joseph A. Locke; Ariel, George A. Weller.

AS TO FEMININE lights in Mr. Shakespeare's comedy, Mrs. Frederick M. Lee is Miranda daughter of Prospero; Miss Olg Frothingham is Iris. Miss Elizabeth Warner does Ceres and Mrs. Stearns Poor is Juno. Altogether its exactly the sort of greatly-talented cast which Footlight Club members are familiar with.

MAKING BACKGROUND, so to speak, for the principals there's a troupe of Marines, Nymphs, Strange Shapes, Reapers and Spirits. These are done by Mrs. Harold S. Dole, Mrs. Franklin H. Nichols, Miss Betty Thomas and Messrs. William A. Rust, John R. Graham, Isaiah Chase, Edward von P. Renouf, Robert P. Eckert, Russell Thayer, Joseph Locke and Morwick Ross.

OTHER IMPORTANT dramatics are afoot. Over in nearby Brookline, the Footlight Club's younger cousin, known locally to fame as the Amateurs, opens the season with "The Romantic Young Lady." Speaking in years, the Amateurs number but a score in their birthday book. But in the matter of theatric existence they, like the Footlight set, have climbed far up the rungs of Fame's ladder.

(Posed for Boston Evening American)

MRS. ALEXANDER HENRY HIGGINSON

Boston society leader, is keenly interested in hunts and race meets.

THEY, TOO, CHOOSE Wednesday week for their opening, performances to continue through Thursday and Friday evenings. Mrs. Frederick H. Briggs is first named in the cast. Miss Dorothy Webling and Alan Hay, favorites both, have parts, and there's a notable sponsor list, including such names as Mrs. Hinkley Welch, Mrs J. Randolph Coolidge, Jr., Mrs. Thomas Bailey Aldrich and Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson.

HUGELY SUCCESSFUL in every way was Miss Abbie Farwell Brown's reading from her poems at the Women's Republican Club. Boston's delightful authoress is to be congratulated and so, indeed, is Leighton Rollins, who had so much to do with engineering the affair to a splendid conclusion. Miss Brown made a delightful platform appearance in an ensemble of dark green, with a corsage of violets. The very handsome ballroom at No. 40 Beacon street was scarcely adequate to hold the many, many admirers of Miss Brown who came to her reading. It was a most representative company. Mrs. Cyrus Dallin was there. And Mrs. Waldo Richards. And Mrs. Edwin Farnham Greene. And young Mrs. Henry Higginson, very attractive in the favorite tile red.

CARDS ARE OUT from Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lindsay Flanders of Brookline for the marriage ceremonial of their daughter, Miss Marian Louise Flanders and Josiah Parmerley Huntoon, to be celebrated at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of Saturday, December 18, in the Church of Our Saviour, Longwood. Miss Flanders, a brown-eyed lissom slip of a girl, with golden-brown hair, cropped as the mode decrees, will be a very charming bride. She dates her coming-out year in that season when Miss Lucia Richmond and Miss Virginia Lees made their debuts. Mr. and Mrs. Flanders have scores of friends in Boston's musically inclined set which acclaims Mr. Flanders as a leader in New England Conservatory affairs.

The Love Wrecker
A Thrilling Romance of Modern Youth in Boston

By BEATRICE BURTON

READ THIS FIRST

Everyone likes her. She fears JOE MEADOWS, the shipping clerk.

Honey Lou sees JACK WALLACK, "Grumpy's" only son. She likes his looks better than those of any other man she has ever seen. That night when she leaves the building he is waiting for her. He asks her to ride home with him. But with her nose in the air Honey walks on.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER III

THERE were things that Honey Lou did that her mother never could understand. Honey Lou thought nothing of them. But to Mrs. Huntley they seemed shocking and dreadful.

There was smoking, for example.

Mrs. Huntley had never, actually seen her daughter with a cigaret in her mouth. But she had caught the whiff of tobacco smoke on Honey Lou's warm, sweet breath once when she kissed her goodnight.

"It doesn't mean anything," Honey Lou had told her with a blush and a shrug of her little shoulders. "Everybody smokes—and I've had only three or four cigarettes in my life, as a matter of fact."

But Honey Lou had never tasted liquor, and she said that she never, never would. She had a genuine horror of it.

"A girl who drinks is—sunk," she told her mother.

Mrs. Huntley could only guess at what "sunk" meant when Honey Lou used it that way. Slang was so much Greek to her.

Honey Lou said "jack" when she meant money. She was "as dead as a Russian ruble" when she was dog-tired.

She said "That's the peanuts!" or "There's jam on that!" when she meant that she liked something. When she did not like a thing she turned up her nose and said "sour ball."

Then, too, Honey Lou painted her lips.

She painted them in public and without shame. "Deary, it's the fashion to paint your mouth and leave your face dead white," she told her mother in her soft, husky voice. "It's the style. Just like shingled hair and gun-metal stockings. You can't get away from it."

And poor Mrs. Huntley, who never had had her hair cut or used anything but rice-powder on her nose, shook her head despairingly over Honey Lou.

She was shaking it tonight when Honey Lou walked out of the little white bedroom that she shared with Margaret, her half-sister.

"What's wrong, Mother?" The girl asked her, and Mrs. Huntley shook her blond head more vigorously than ever.

"Oh, I was just thinking about you," she sighed deeply. "To think of a man stopping you, and offering you a lift in his car! And you out, after dark! It isn't safe. It isn't right for a girl to be out alone at night."

In the little sleepy southern town where Mrs. Huntley had been a belle, girls had never gone out alone at night. Neither had they worked for a living, unless they taught school or painted china.

"If I went out after dark when I was a girl, somebody always went with me," she said now to Honey Lou. "Girls didn't run around alone in those days the way they do now. They were taken care of, let me tell you! Where do you suppose Margaret is, at this time of night?"

"Five minutes to 7," she murmured.

"My word, Honey Lou," she added, after a minute. "I do wish you girls would get married. It would be a load off my mind to have you both safe in your own homes. I do worry so about you."

"Ma'gret's going to marry Steve Mayhew, sooner or later. Don't you think she is?" Honey Lou asked, stretching herself on the big chintz-covered sofa that filled one side of the room.

With her arms locked above her head, her straight lovely body was like the slender stalk of a great flower.

"Don't you think so, Mother?" she repeated lazily.

Mrs. Hunley's mouth went up at the corners in a half-smile.

"He'll never marry while you're

JACOB TURNER OF MILTON IS DEAD

Jacob A. Turner, former selectman of Milton and prominent in many fraternal, social and civic organizations, is dead at his home, No. 290 Central avenue, Milton. He was in his 77th year.

Mr. Turner was born in Franklin. He came to Milton when a young man and organized an ice company, remaining at the head of the business for 54 years. He served twelve years on the Milton Board of Selectmen and was its chairman for four years.

He was a 32nd degree Mason and one of the few holders of the Henry Price Masonic Medal. He was also a member of the Aleppo Drum Corps and band, a lieutenant in the Ancient and Honorable Artillery, a member of the Knights of Pythias, Sons of American Revolution, Milton Historical Society, Boston Chamber of Commerce and an honorary member of the G. A. R.

He is survived by a wife, Mary C. Turner, a daughter, Mrs. Robert Robertson of Boston, and two sons, Jacob L. and Roger S. Turner, of Milton. Funeral services will be held at his home tomorrow afternoon with Rev. Vivian Pomeroy, pastor of First Christ Church of Milton, officiating. Interment will be in Milton Cemetery.

BAY STATE BOY RISES TO FAME WITH COOLIDGE

New York, Nov. 30.—A struggling young lawyer and a struggling young immigrant were in a Northampton, Mass., court room twenty-one years ago. Both had dreams. The young lawyer probably exceeded his wildest dream. He is now President of the United States. The young immigrant has realized some of his dreams and now will paint a picture of President Coolidge.

The young immigrant is today Ercole Cartotto, widely-known painter. In the days of the Northampton court scene he was earning $6 a week in a silk mill and was in the court room to learn English. He has struggled and achieved honor in his art. Among those whom he has painted are Emilie Topp, as Lady Ann in Shakespeare's "Richard III., Mrs. John Wanamaker and other society leaders. "But I always wanted to paint that young lawyer," he said today. "He had such a New England face."

FILE BILL IN MOVE TO ELECTRIFY RAILROADS

An investigation by the Division of Metropolitan Planning into the cost of electrifying the lines of all railroads operating within the metropolitan district is asked for in a bill filed at the State House today by the United Improvement Association.

IMMIGRANT'S DREAM REALIZED

ARREST BEARER OF SISTER'S CASKET

Sought for two years on complaint of a Cambridge girl, George Clements, formerly of that city, was taken into custody by police as he bore his sister's casket from her home at No. 113 Harvard street today.

His wife, wanted by the Boston police on a bigamy charge, escaped from the funeral procession before the Boston authorities could arrest her.

With Inspector Sergeant John Neilan and Special Officer Charles Donelan, Clements walked to St. Mary's Church, listened to a funeral mass, and with the officers still at his elbow journeyed back to Cambridge Cemetery, where his sister was buried. He was then taken to police headquarters.

The authorities had been seeking Clements for the past two years. Word was received today to the effect that he was to be one of the pall bearers at the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Gertrude England.

The officers went to the England home and then waited for Clements to appear outside.

In a short time their wait was rewarded and the man slowly walked to the sidewalk bearing the casket. The officers quietly stepped up to him. They explained their mission and he promised to go with them quietly.

This promise brought response from the police. They told him he could go to the church and then to the cemetery, in their company.

PEACE WITH GERMANY NEARER, SAYS BRIAND

Paris, Nov. 30 (A.P.)—"Grave differences with Germany still exist," Foreign Minister Briand told the Chamber of Deputies today, "but at least we are talking with Dr. Stresemann (the German Foreign Minister) and every day marks progress.

"Every day brings real peace nearer. It isn't through a two-hour talk in a tavern that the course of history can be changed and the past wiped out."

The differences between the two countries chiefly concern the regulation of German quasi-military associations and control of arms exports.

Governor of Rome Named

Why Do American Workers Lead World As Producers?

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Nov. 30.

WHY ARE American wage earners doing more work than ever before? The whole answer is not, "they have more machinery at their command." Part of the answer, an important part, is "they know better than they used to know that full production helps them as well as everybody else."

* * *

I HAVE just had the privilege of looking over orders received by a concern publishing books relating to business, to industry, to investments, to the life stories of successful business men and the like. It would probably astonish you to see the number of employers, including large corporations, that are ordering such books for their company libraries.

B. C. Forbes

Progressive employers now realize that the more their work people understand about economics, the better it is for all. The intelligent employer of today prefers to deal with enlightened rather than ignorant workers.

F. SWIFT, president of Swift & Co., the world's largest packers, said to me a few days ago in discussing this educational evolution:

"One of the encouraging features of our industrial life is the dependence upon one another of employe and employer. We, on the employing side, are learning something of the viewpoint of those who work in the plants. Also, we have learned that we can go to these men with a fair explanation of a matter that puzzles them and may reasonably expect that they will accept that explanation.

"On their side, I believe that the employes have lost much of their former distrust of management. They now know that they will get a considerate hearing of their complaints and that whatever the outcome it will be what, in the opinion of those most interested, is fairest to both sides.

"This state of affairs is of comparatively recent development. It has grown in the last few years and the results have been such that we hope it will be permanent. Conditions at the present time are favorable to such plans. It is our belief that they will also stand the test of a less favorable situation. The tests to which it has been subjected up to the present time, however, have not been crucial.

"THIS new attitude is not local. It has spread enough to attract attention across the sea. Great Britain has in this country an official delegation, including men in the Ministry of Labor and representatives of employers and of labor, making a study of labor conditions here and in Canada so that they may report back the reasons for good employe relations over here.

"All this is encouraging. With peace in the labor world, new money will enter industry, and this means more work and more consumers for the goods manufactured."

ALL THE invention and machinery America can ever produce will not insure this country's world leadership unless we develop the best, the most intelligent, the highest educated workers on the face of the earth.

FARMERS ARE URGED TO ATTEND CONFERENCE HERE

Invitations have been broadcast to agriculturists throughout New England in connection with New England farm marketing conference here Dec. 9 and 10. It will mark the first attempt of New England agricultural interests to solve their common problems on a New England wide instead of State basis, and to find and promote better methods of marketing farm products and develop a standardized grading system.

NEW ENGLAND FINE CATTLE COUNTRY

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

So diverse are New England's many industries that this section is not often thought of as having a great deal to offer in the cattle raising line. Nevertheless these northeastern States are a fine cattle country, boasting many herds which cannot be excelled elsewhere.

The writer was reminded of this on visiting last week the famous Guernsey farm of Governor Fuller of Massachusetts, a few miles from the Governor's Summer home at Rye, N. H. This farm is named "Runnymede," after the meadow where King John in 1215 signed Magna Charta, establishing English liberty. Governor Fuller now abroad here has Guernseys that are such by birth as well as by breed, imported direct from the Channel Islands. Perhaps it is as well that Lieutenant-Governor Frank G. Allen represents our Governor at the New England Ayrshire Cattle Club annual meeting in Boston, December 7, for lovers of one breed of cattle are usually most partial to that breed!

Governor John G. Winant, of New Hampshire is a noted breeder of Ayrshires. He will attend the meeting here. Ralph W. Cripps, of Camden, Me., owner of the famous cow, "Brownie," will address the meeting. He has shown to the world what proper breeding will do for cows. Among guests will be Glen C. Sevey, editor of the New England Homestead; Professor J. W. Franken, head of the animal husbandry department of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, and Professor C. T. Conklin, secretary of the Ayrshire Breeders' Association. R. M. Handy of Charlton, secretary of the club, will be in charge.

No mention of renowned New England cattle would be complete without at least passing reference to the Holteins, at Brockton. One of these thoroughbreds frequently fetches as much as a good-sized herd of Texan cattle.

Equipping of "L" street cars with stop lights will serve to recall the heated controversy over the necessity for this type of light on automobiles. The outcome of the public debate was that legislation compelling installation of these lights was not passed. Some think it would be better for the "L" to spend the money by putting proper shades in its new curtainless cars. On a sunny day the lack of curtains means additional discomfort, inability to read, etc., for one half of the riders.

One of America's largest secret society insurance organizations, born in Boston, is preparing to celebrate its semi-centennial next year. The poster reproduced herewith is being affixed to member mail. Supreme Secretary Samuel N. Hoag tells me: "The supreme council of the Royal Arcanum was organized in Boston by twelve men June 21, 1877, and was incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts the following November. Founded on the principles of Virtue, Mercy and Charity, it has grown and prospered and now numbers approximately 115,000 members with an emergency fund of over $17,000,000."

Some headliners, who failed to grasp what Registrar Goodwin really said or who failed to express it, conveyed the idea he had pronounced a tax on gasoline as absurd. Of course Mr. Goodwin would say nothing of the sort, because he knows the gasoline tax plan has proved highly successful in New England already. The latest State I have visited and found it recently adopted is Maine.

Passage of Gooding bill to reduce rates and extend for 30 years the $200,000,000 loans owed to government by railroads has been recommended to President Coolidge by a delegation of New Haven Railroad officials headed by Vice-President Buckland. President Pearson of the New Haven was a visitor here this week.

CAVANAUGH FAVORS BAN ON TIE GAMES

Cav Backs Move to Abolish Tie Game

By BIRNEY P. LYNCH

MAJOR FRANK CAVANAUGH, universally recognized as the greatest "one-man" coach in the country, and for eight years mentor of the Boston College gridiron warriors, is an advocate of the elimination of tie games.

Cavanaugh holds that tie games are decidely unsatisfactory and says he would welcome amendment to the rules to obviate this popularity boll weevil. He gave unqualified endorsement of the Boston Evening American's campaign, launched Monday, to sound the sentiment of the leading coaches and football authorities on this important and much needed reform.

"Of course I would like to see tie games done away with," he said. "But I frankly don't see how such a change can be effected. I wish there were some way to bring it about.

"It's a delicate proposition and to me there does not appear any practical method. Tie scores always leave an incomplete feeling with the players and spectators, and a conclusive outcome would, I think, help to popularize the game.

"I'm afraid it is a radical move and it is one which I would hesitate to force down anyone's throat. Nevertheless, it's a change that would be acceptable if it could be done."

Cav Qualified to Demand Change

Major Cavanaugh is perhaps as well qualified to speak on the feeling engendered by tie games as any coach in the country. Boston College was the victim of two decisionless contests this year, one of them the scoreless tie with the Holy Cross eleven in the Eagles objective struggle and the other the deadlock with the Haskell Indians in which each eleven piled up 21 points.

The Boston College coach did not approve one of the suggestions advanced by the writer that one of the solutions lay in the playing of extra periods.

"Sixty minutes is long enough for any team," he said. "With time out and other necessary delays it is usually long enough for the players."

This objection could be swept aside, however, by shortening the regular periods or by substitutions, both of which are done under the present rules.

Cleo O'Donnell, athletic director and football coach at Holy Cross, whose Crusaders upset the dope in their scoreless tie with the Eagles, today expressed the belief that rule revision is not imperative and declined to O. K. the suggestion that efforts be made to eliminate tie scores. He admitted, however, that the present code was difficult of interpretation.

Gilroy Frowns on Deadlocks

Ralph Gilroy, former Princeton halfback and a writer of football, today advanced the suggestion that the periods be shortened to allow an extra period within the same playing time as now prescribed under the rules.

"I certainly am in favor of any change that will eliminate the tie," declared Gilroy. "As a player, college and pro, and as an assistant coach, I am free to confess that a football game that ends in a tie is decidedly unsatisfactory to everyone concerned.

"I would suggest that the periods be shortened to twelve minutes. Then in case of a tie, an extra twelve minute period could be played and if that failed to produce the desired result let both teams try for field goals from specified distance until one or the other misses."

The Boston Evening American invites suggestions and opinions regarding the advisability of eliminating the tie game from football. If fans will send in their suggestions all those of a constructive nature briefly written will be printed, space conditions permitting.

Duncan, Golf Man of Mystery, to Tour West

George Duncan, brilliant British professional, whose failure to win more than one British open championship in 20 years of play, is one of the mysteries of golf, will arrive in New York a week from today.

Duncan plans a tour of the Pacific coast in a series of matches against America's leading professionals. In his long career Duncan never has been able to average better than 75 in Britain's leading tournament, although he averaged 65¾ in winning a championship of Lucerne at Axenfels in 1913.

CARNEGIE TECH INVITED TO PLAY LOYOLA ELEVEN

Pittsburgh, Nov. 30 (A.P.)—As a result of its surprising 19 to 0 defeat of Notre Dame Saturday, Carnegie Tech has been invited to play a post-season football game against Loyola University of New Orleans. The invitation was contained in a telegram sent to Clarence Overend, Carnegie graduate manager, by Fred M. Walker, coach of the southern team.

Loyola was to have met Geneva College in an inter-sectional battle at New Orleans New Year's Day, but the Covenanters' unexpected defeat at the hands of Grove City was understood to have caused the Southerners to seek the Tartans instead.

CHARLEY ROSENBERG WINS DESPITE HIS POOR WORK

New York, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—Charley Phil Rosenberg, the sometimes recognized bantamweight champion, made his first local appearance in more than a year and won easily from Georgia Mack in a no-decision ten-round bout at Jersey City.

Rosenberg was off in timing and distance, but Mack gave a disappointing exhibition, fighting only in flashes, and Rosenberg won all the way.

BILLY PETROLLE TO BOX LIGHTWEIGHT CHAMPION

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 30 (A.P.)—Billy Petrolle, of Fargo, N. D., here to referee a fight announced he had been signed to meet Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, at Newark, N. J., January 23, in a no-decision bout.

HOLY CROSS TO START HOCKEY PRACTICE TODAY

Worcester, Nov. 30. — Tomorrow will see the starting of a new sport at Holy Cross College, when a call will be made for hockey candidates. In conformity with the expansive plan of the athletic authorities intramural hockey will receive its initiative next week with the starting of a hockey tournament. This will give the athletic management an opportunity to select the nucleus of a varsity team for next year, when Boston College and Holy Cross will meet for the first time in hockey. A hockey rink is being constructed on Freshman field.

ONLY 6 LOWELL LETTER MEN FOR NEXT YEAR

Lowell, Nov. 30.—The Lowell High football team will lose 16 of its 22 block letter men by graduation. Coach Liston will have but six of this year's squad to form a nucleus for an eleven next Fall. These are Tom Saunders, Tom Callary, Brenden Meagher, Jim Baker, Bill Grabalski and Jim Angiuin. Eight of the players who started against Lawrence Thanksgiving Day will not be present next year.

URGES GIANT STADIUM AS ROOSEVELT MEMORIAL

Washington, Nov. 30.—Representative Fish, Republican, of New York, says he intends to introduce a bill at the coming session of Congress for erection of a giant stadium here as a memorial to Theodore Roosevelt, in which, he said, the Olympic games, the annual Army-Navy football game and even Presidential inauguration ceremonies could be held.

Sailor Jim

This is Jim Herberts, star centre of the Boston Bruins, who returns to the lineup tonight after a two weeks' absence due to injuries.

Butler True to Amateurs

Philadelphia, Nov. 30.—John Butler, star center of the University of Pennsylvania eleven, has denied that he will play pro football this season.

'Bucky' Harris Sees Future for Baseball in England

NEW YORK, Nov. 30 (A. P.)—Baseball may never be popular in England where the boys throw baseballs "like girls," but coaches of America's national pastime are in great demand overseas, "Bucky" Harris says.

The manager of the Washington Senators, returning from a honeymoon trip abroad with his bride, formerly Miss Elizabeth Sutherland, declared he was still "up in the air" as to plans for the coming season. He will confer with Clark Griffith, owner of the club, in a few days, he said.

In discussing the baseball situation abroad, Harris said that almost constant rain in England and on the continent made baseball in Europe "a long way off." "It would be almost impossible to finish a game on most days," he added.

Cricket, the National game in England, has seen the advantage of the "snap peg," of baseball infielders and wants instructors who can teach British youth how to put wrist and forearm into a quick throw.

All youngsters want to be bowlers, the baseball equivalent of a pitcher, Bucky said, but the stiff arm underhand throw of Britain's star "twirlers" is more difficult to master and less effective than the American overarm toss.

Baseball may have a future in Ireland, Harris said, in pointing out the long list of names of Irish origin on big league rosters. "And the Irishman is handy at throwing things," he added.

World's Most Famous Football Player

Written Expressly For Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Making all-America football selections is much more difficult than I ever imagined up to the time I set out, about a month ago, to get details on the playing ability of several outstanding stars.

Each football follower with whom I talked had some player whom he touted as positively the best anywhere at his particular position. I heard about so many stars that I became dizzy trying to reduce them into groups of eleven players.

I have never known of an all-America eleven that met with anything like general satisfaction, and I do not expect that my selections will be any exception to the rule. The field is too extensive to be covered without missing some players who, perhaps, possess more ability than the men who meet with general approval.

McGraw Corrals Twirlers for Junket to Southland

NEW YORK, Nov. 30 (A. P.)—John McGraw, peppery manager of the New York Giants, [illegible] South to Sarasota, Florida, in February.

Six regulars from the 1926 National League season, Jimmy Ring, Kent Greenfield, Fred Fitzsimmons, "Virgil" Barnes, Hugh McQuillan and Jack Scott, form the nucleus of the staff. Another twirler, who may be classed as a regular, is versatile Jack Bentley, secured from Philadelphia at the close of last season, who McGraw says, can "run, hit, pitch, sing tenor, and play first base on a ukelele."

Other hurlers going south are "Dutch" Henry, once a Brook Robin and still a southpaw, Hal Courtney, former bigleaguer and with San Francisco last season, and Fay Thomas, left hander from the University of Southern California [illegible] won [illegible] games and lost 4 for [illegible] in the Eastern League [illegible]

Brookline and Everett in Play-Off

The Everett and Brookline High elevens, which finished in a tie for first place in the Suburban League will play off the deadlock Saturday afternoon, probably at Braves Field on the order of the governing board of the Suburban League.

Coaches Thomas H. Hines of Brookline and Dennis [illegible] of Everett opposed the idea previously and the Brookline High Athletic Council had ruled that there would be no playoff as far as Brookline was concerned.

The teams will mutually agree on the field and officials.

Tickets for the game were ordered printed and it is expected that there will be 1000 reserved seats on sale at each of the schools [illegible] The athletic authorities also tentatively agreed on officials for the game as follows: Thomas [illegible] referee; J. W. Mooney, umpire; Howard Woodlock, linesman, and Albert J. Woodlock, field judge.

Phil Todt Takes High Rank Among Best Fielders of Year

SEVERAL outstanding features are noted in individual fielding records of the 1926 season in the American League. Catcher John Bassler of the Detroit team, in 63 games behind the bat, had 284 chances without error, though he was charged with one passed ball. His 61 assists meant almost one per game. Phil Todt, first baseman of the Boston Red Sox, had 1755 put outs and 126 assists in 154 games, a total of 1881 chances accepted. He had part in 114 double plays and two triple plays. Willie Kamm of the Chicago White Sox recorded a fielding average of .978, very high for third basemen. Bibb Falk, left fielder of the White Sox, made but three errors in 155 games, according to the official scorers' reports. There was a notable list of pitchers who handled all their fielding chances without error, or with but one error made all season. The records:

FIGURES SHOW BATSMEN HELPED BY RABBIT BALL

Departure of the "rabbit ball" is evident from the team batting figures from the American League disclosed recently among the league statistics for the past season.

The Washington Senators led with a mark of .292. Detroit was second with .291, and three clubs tied at 289. In 1921, second year of the "fast" ball, Detroit led with .316. Cleveland was second with .308, and both the Browns and Yanks hit over .300.

JOHN MORRISON USES LINIMENT KEEPS FREE OF ACHES AND PAINS

This Famous Ball Player Tells What Is Best For Aches and Pains

LINIMENT KEEPS YOU LIMBER, SPRY, SUPPLE

Men and women who suffer with lame, stiff, achy backs, joints or muscles, and would like to be free of such troubles should take a tip from Big League Stars like John Morrison of Pittsburgh "Pirates."

John Morrison says:—"Mike Martin could charge ten times what he does for that liniment of his and not a soul would refuse to pay it. It is the finest liniment made for aches and pains and no mistake."

Big League Stars couldn't play ball if crippled up with aches, pains, swollen, stiff joints or rheumatism. Whenever they get that way no time is lost in quickly relieving the trouble. Mike Martin's Liniment is a higher priced, more expensive liniment than ordinary remedies, but it is worth the difference—quicker, surer, safer and better—more pleasant to use also. It is unquestionably the best money can buy. High priced "Stars" wouldn't fool with anything but the best.

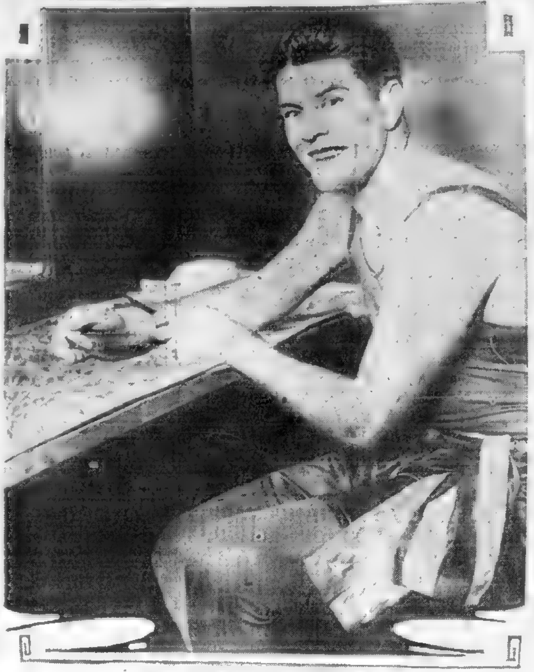
GENE GOES FROM STAGE TO COURT



YES, THIS IS THE BOXING KING

Mr. Tunney is herewith shown getting ready for the act which brought down upon his titled shoulders the wrath of the New York Boxing Commission, and led to his arrest for violation of their rules prohibiting unsanctioned exhibition boxing bouts.

Animus Spurs Arrest of Boxing Champion, His Lawyer Says

NEW YORK, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Magistrate Silbermann was told today that there is "animus" behind the arrest of Gene Tunney for giving a "boxing act" on a vaudeville stage.

Tunney was arrested on complaint of a representative of the State Boxing Commission who charged the champion with boxing in "an unlicensed club."

The fighter was arraigned this morning and the case postponed until Thursday. His counsel, Dudley Field Malone, made the remark about animus but did not mention any names.

Request for the adjournment was made by Deputy Attorney General Ullman, who said his office wanted to investigate the case for future reference in such matters.

Mr. Malone said he was agreeable to the adjournment if he was assured that police would not "break up the show" in the meantime. Mr. Ullman at first said he did not know whether there would be more arrests today or not.

Magistrate Silbermann ruled that if there were any further arrests he would call a hearing immediately but if there were no other arrests the case would stand adjourned until Thursday. Mr. Ullman then assured the court that no such arrests would be made.

Shipkey of Stanford, and Broda of Brown are my choice for the end positions with Oosterbaan and Hanson paired on the second team, and Hubbard and Born on the third. Shipkey, according to the players who came East with George Wilson, Ernie Nevers and Brick Muller, is a marvel. They told me he was the greatest end they had ever seen and that surely is expert testimony. He is unquestionably the best end in the West, starring alike on defense and as a forward pass receiver.

Broda is the outstanding end in the East and one of the big figures in Brown's great season. He played almost every minute of every game and always starred up to the final game with Colgate. But he did enough to earn top rating, with Hanson of Syracuse close behind.

For tackles I have selected Wickhorst of the Navy and Johnson of Northwestern, with other places allotted to Cothran and Lassman, Sprague and Nelson. Wickhorst is fast, smart and powerful, and a hard charging lineman. He was a good player when I knew him as a freshman at Illinois, and he has improved each year, reaching his best form this season. Little ground was gained through him at any time this year and he was a tremendous factor in the success of the Navy team.

JOHNSON FAST AS BACK.

Johnson, the other first string tackle, is as fast as a lot of backs, and stood out above a flock of great linemen in the Conference. I played against him when he was a sophomore and he has developed steadily. He can do every task of a lineman as well as anybody I know about.

Connaughton of Georgetown and Hess of Ohio State get the call for the guard positions, with Smith and Shively, and Carey and Sturhahn next in line. Hess was named on numerous All-America teams last season and his work this year was of the same high calibre. He is big and fast and equally strong on offense and defense. Connaughton, with 230 pounds and surprising speed to go with the weight, is the outstanding guard of the year. Any man of that size who combines speed and strength with it is bound to be a great guard.

First honors as a center go to Boeringer of Notre Dame. He is a wonderful passer and his timing is perfect. Under the Rockne system, which hinges on the center to such a great extent, the passing and timing must be close to perfection.

It takes a real center to stand out on Rockne's team and Boeringer shines just as Adam Walsh did. I believe Boeringer is as good a center as Walsh was. Butler of Pennsylvania and Reitsch of Illinois are second and third choice, respectively.

In naming Benny Friedman for quarterback, I can only repeat what I said of him in my All-Conference story. He is a crafty team general, one of the best passers in the country, a strong kicker, and both fast and elusive as a ball carrier. I think, without any doubt, he is one of the great quarterbacks of recent years, if not of football history. Kelly of Montana and Caulkins of Princeton get the other places.

KAER ALL-ROUND STAR.

As halfbacks my choice for the first team are Kaer of Southern California and Rogers of Penn, with Baker and Flanagan on the second team, and Wilcox and Hamilton on the third. Kaer, a trackman, is the best open field runner in the game today. He runs well from scrimmage or in carrying back punts. He led the country in scoring last year and now tops the coast scorers. He also passes well and is a good kicker.

Rogers is another great ground gainer, in fact the most consistent in the East. He is seldom thrown for a loss, is a good triple threat and is a strong defensive back as well. In fact he is a capable performer at anything that he attempts on a football field.

Joesting of Minnesota, as I said in picking the Conference teams, is a whole backfield in himself. He holds his feet well, is a terrific line smasher, and also the best defensive player at backing up a line in the country today. He is not a flashy runner, but he stands alone in line smashing, and also can pass and kick very well. Karow and Lewis, two other great backs of the Conference, are second and third choices.

I considered both Slagle of Princeton and O'Boyle of Notre Dame for the backfield, but their work this past season was limited too much by injuries.

Timson Leaves for Coast Swim

Louis Timson, New England's foremost entrant in the Catalina swim which takes place on the Pacific Coast on January 15, was given a hearty sendoff by the Lynn natives while making his departure from that city today for Los Angeles.

The North Shore water nymph, escorted by William Sargent, his manager, and Melvin King, road secretary, started on a 3,000-mile automobile journey shortly after noon. Timson in perfect physical condition said that he expected to win Wrigley's $2,500 purse if conditions were satisfactory.

He will represent the Leon E. Abbott American Legion Post of Swampscott. The Lynn Chamber of Commerce also donated enough money to defray his expenses across the continent.

Bouts Last Night

At Jersey City—Charley (Phil) Rosenberg defeated Georgie Mack of Jersey City, ten rounds. K. O. Phil Kaplan of New York won on technical knockout over Freddie Kelly of Buffalo in first round.

McAllister to Boss Indians as Successor of Speaker?

Cleveland, O., Nov. 30 (I.N.S.)—If public sentiment, dope and all the other elements which habitually attend a baseball discussion have anything to do with the decision, Jack McAllister, assistant manager of the Cleveland Indians, will succeed Tris Speaker, who resigned yesterday.

The hot stove boys were disseminating hot tips here today that "Happy" Jack, scout, coach and assistant manager for 12 years, would step into the shoes of the famous Texan who has decided to "enter trade."

"It will take considerable thought and will be no easy task to fill the job," declared E. S. Barnard, president of the club, here today.

Eddie Collins and George Burns also have been mentioned in connection with the berth.

GEORGETOWN STARS NOT TO TURN PRO

Washington, Nov. 30. — Three Georgetown football stars—Connaughton, tackle and guard, and McGrath and Waite, ends—have promised athletic officials at the university that they will not turn pro until after their graduation in June at the earliest.

FISH TAKES ARMY-NAVY SCANDAL TO LAWMAKERS

Washington, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—The Army-Navy football game ticket "scandal" will be carried before the Military and Naval Affairs Committee of the House, Representative Fish (R.) of New York announced today.

"I think some way can be worked out whereby the sale of tickets at handsome profits by congressmen's secretaries can be stopped," he said.

Fish announced his intention of introducing a bill providing for the erection of a stadium in Washington in which all future Army-Navy games would be held. He would dedicate it to former President Theodore Roosevelt.

TWO NOVICE CLASSES AT ST. JOE'S SHOW

Two more novice classes have been arranged for the weekly amateur boxing tournament of the St. Joseph T. A. S. at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square next Saturday night, according to an announcement by the popular West End organization.

Novices will participate in the bouts of the 118 and 147 pound classes. The followers of the simon pures will witness bouts in five open classes. These divisions will include 112, 126, 135, 160 and heavyweight and all the prominent boys in these divisions will be on hand to defend their laurels.

AMATEUR BOXERS IN Y. M. H. A. RING TONIGHT

Followers of the amateur boxing sport will hit the trail to the Y. M. H. A. tonight, where an all star show will be on tap with competition in five open classes at 118, 126, 135, 147 and 160 pounds. A [illegible] entry list has been received among whom are some of the best performers in their classes, and all indications are that it will be close to midnight before the final bout of the evening is over.

ROCKNE LIMITS 1927 SCHEDULE TO 8 GAMES

Kansas City, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—The Notre Dame football team will play only eight games next season, Knute Rockne, coach, announced here today. The squad, made up of 31 players, passed through Kansas City today on its way to Los Angeles for an intersectional game Saturday with the University of Southern California.

"Too much of a schedule for us this year," said Rockne. "I'm going to cut it down to eight games next year. Army and Navy, Southern California, Drake at Des Moines, Minnesota and three others. This year we've played nine already and next Saturday's game will make ten.

"You know the boys get tired mentally. They were that way against Carnegie Tech. We haven't had an easy game on the schedule. No time to rest."

The coach said that after the California game he intended to go to Honolulu to open a short coaching course and that while there he would referee a few games.

WATERBURY CLUB TRADES TOUCHSTONE AND DEMOE

Waterbury, Ct., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—The Waterbury baseball club today announced the sale of Infielder Shorty Demoe and Pitcher Clayton Touchstone to the Providence club of the Eastern League. The sale price was not announced.

Demoe came to Waterbury last season after he refused to report to the Rochester club of the International League. Touchstone, returned by the Chicago Cubs after the Spring training trip of last season, refused to join Waterbury last season and played independent ball in Pennsylvania.

YALE TO STAGE COURT TOURNEY NEXT MONTH

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 30 (A.P.).—The regular annual Christmas trip has been abandoned by the Yale basketball team this year and an invitation tournament here on the evenings of December 28, 29 and 30 has been substituted.

Holy Cross, Tufts and Vermont were the three teams to whom invitations were sent and all have accepted.

The Yale basketball team will open its season next Tuesday evening against a quintet representing the New London submarine base.

HANNEGAN WINS GRID BRAVERY MEDAL

EACH Fall brings forth some outstanding hero in football—some young man whose courage transcends physical pain and suffering. This year the palm goes to young Hannegan, the Washington boy who played quarterback for the Navy. This future admiral went into the Army-Navy game with a broken shoulder. Despite the handicap and the agony he felt each time someone smacked him, and they tell us there was plenty of smacking in that skirmish, he kept on going and steered the sailor backs through and around the brilliant soldier defenses. He had the use of but one hand, but what was more important, his brain was working clearly all the time. He should be quite a useful citizen for Uncle Sam if the old boy happens to be in any trouble after young Mister Hannegan gets into active service. The kid will never know worse punishment than he had to take Saturday, and reports have it that he carried on with a grin and never let the enemy realize his handicap until a truce had been called in the chilly Illinois evening. He has the stuff that makes the real fighting man.

Nick Flatley

His case recalls that of Joe McKenney last year against Holy Cross. Joseph had a dislocated shoulder, and was writhing on the bench when the Eagles came down close to the goal line. Cav wanted a pass and had to send someone in to chuck it. McKenney begged for the chance, and won the argument. He had to take the ball with one hand from the center, and make the pass, over the goal line, quickly. He did all those things before he started to crumple. He had to be carried off the field, but he had the satisfaction of knowing that his one play sewed up that ball game.

Boys who can stay in and take it are rare in these days, when almost every team has as many doctors as players on the bench.

FOOTBALL TIES AREN'T GOOD EVEN FOR CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

Hi—What's an optimist?

Lo—A small college player who expects to make an All-American team.

SPOKE HAS PLENTY; DOESN'T NEED BASEBALL

COMMOTION about the All-American teams will die out with the present week, and then the sport fans will begin to warm up about baseball. The meetings of the magnates start next week, and may be full of fireworks when the Judge Landis contract is discussed. Two clubs in the large show are still shy managers—the Red Sox and the Cleveland Indians.

The retirement of Speaker did not surprise anybody much, but it will be unusual if the Texan gets out of baseball. Very few of the boys can do that. Spoke has more money than he can spend in several lifetimes, so he doesn't need the game. But he always has been an enthusiastic fan as well as a star player. That probably made him the great athlete.

Speaker has known every thrill that baseball holds, so perhaps he cannot see his way clear to parking on the bench, a job that is mostly trouble and very little fun. He is a type that would go very well as an active magnate. The game has too many owners who don't know what it's all about, and never try to find out.

Nobody expected to see Carnegie Tech Notre Dame over the jumps.

FIGURES PROVE FOOTBALL POPULARITY

FOOTBALL in the colleges, according to conservative estimates, drew 15,000,000 fans this fall, who kicked in with approximately $30,000,000 to see young men commit mutual assault and battery. At least as many more spent just about as much at the high school games which starred the map of the country each week-end.

It must harry the souls of the efficiency experts, as well as the professional sport promoters to see so much money going to waste, as they would call it. The young men who attract all that dough don't get any section of it.

But every kid playing would prefer to make a long run and the winning touchdown to collecting the entire receipts of any big game. Football has a spirit that no other game boasts. That is why it has such a peculiar appeal to the mob.

MELLO SIGNS FOR ZIVIC ENCOUNTER

By JACK CONWAY

Al Mello, sensational Lowell welterweight, has signed to battle Jack Zivic of Pittsburgh in a ten-round bout at a Suffolk A. A. show at the New Boston Arena on December 13. It is a return match, as Mello was awarded the decision over Zivic after a torrid engagement at Braves Field last June.

In the first meeting between these sturdy welterweights, Zivic knocked Mello to the canvas in the third frame, only to be tipped over himself in the fourth round. Zivic then came back and had Al hanging on in the eighth round. Mello made a hurricane finish and almost knocked the Pittsburgh battler out.

The decision of the judges and referee, while unanimous, did not meet with the approval of many of the fans, who were of the opinion Zivic had the margin. A return bout was planned for the Summer, but was called off when Mello was stricken with appendicitis.

Jack Conway

The Lowell welterweight returned to the ring recently at Lynn, knocking out Tony Marto of New York in a round. His next start will be against Johnny Saxon of Bridgeport at Lowell on Thursday night. He will then start training for his tussle with Zivic.

The Pittsburgh welterweight has battled Joe Dundee and Tommy Freeman since his last appearance here and is confident he will conquer Mello.

ED KEALEY, Bridgeport heavyweight, made a trip to Boston to see Johnny McGrath, former manager of Jim Maloney. After a conference, he signed a long term contract with McGrath. Kealey will begin training at once and should be ready to start boxing within a month. He will make his home in South Boston and after he has had a few bouts will probably start directing his fire at Jim Maloney.

Like all managers who have had differences with boxers, McGrath would like to unearth a heavyweight who would eliminate Maloney. He believes that he has such a man in Kealey. The latter is a southpaw and a sweet socker. He is only 25 years of age and so has his ring future ahead of him.

BOSTON'S professional boxing clubs used very good judgment in giving the Veterans of Foreign Wars a clear field for their international amateur boxing show which will be staged at Mechanics Building on Friday night. There are enough dates for the pro clubs without crowding the boys who did their stuff over there.

The class of the amateur boxers of Canada, Pittsburgh and Boston will be seen in action at the international tourney. There will also be two open classes. Canadian and Pittsburgh boxers have always shown to advantage in Boston which explains the great interest being shown in Friday night's show.

The veterans have opened a down town office at Room 22, No. 3 School street.

JIM MALONEY, South Boston heavyweight, has been installed a favorite for his ten-round bout with Franz Diener, German heavyweight, which will be staged at Madison Square Garden on Thursday night.

All-Scholastic Wednesday

The Boston Evening American's Boston district All-Scholastic football teams for 1926 will be published Wednesday. The selections, based on the observations and opinions of the leading coaches and observers, has been made by Eddie Dondero, high school sports editor.

Bouts Last Night

At Chicago—Billy Humphries of England defeated Joey Abrams of Brooklyn, 10 rounds. Each weighed 128 pounds.

Grimes Says Davis and Weston Deserving of 'All' Honors

By BILL GRIMES.

Judging from the mythical teams already published, I have awarded positions to two players who have received scarcely an honorable mention. I refer to the selection of Josh Davis of Dartmouth and Al Weston of Boston College.

Regardless of the opinions of others, I firmly believe that Josh Davis has been the outstanding centre [illegible] since he first made the grade at Dartmouth a year ago. To begin with there are few keener students of the game, quicker [illegible] and better fighters than Davis. He is one of the finest passers that ever held down a pivot position.

A centre's job at Dartmouth is a particularly difficult assignment, for Coach Hawley is a strong believer in fast direct passes and in order that plays get underway rapidly, the centre [illegible] centering. Davis' work [illegible] a great deal [illegible] attack a year ago. Defensively Davis will measure up to any centre in the game.

Al Weston is one of the [illegible] running backs [illegible] seen Weston in action and therefore have missed a treat, for he stands head and shoulders over many of those selected for the leading football honors. Here are my selections:

FIRST TEAM
L.E.	Broda, Brown
L.T.	Pratt, Harvard
L.G.	Hess, Ohio State
Center	Davis, Dartmouth
R.G.	Connaughton, Georgetown
R.T.	Hodge, Brown
R.E.	Hanson, Syracuse
Q.B.	Friedman, Michigan
H.B.	Wilson, Lafayette
H.B.	Weston, Boston College
F.B.	Joesting, Minnesota
SECOND TEAM
L.E.	Oosterbaan, Michigan
L.T.	Eddy, Navy
L.G.	Sturhahn, Yale
Centre	Butler, Pennsylvania
R.G.	Swan, Stanford
R.T.	Roebuck, Haskell
R.E.	Towle, [illegible]
Q.B.	Randall, Brown
H.B.	Flannigan, Notre Dame
H.B.	Mishel, Brown
THIRD TEAM
L.E.	Lloyd, Navy
L.G.	Smith, Brown
Center	Williamson, Colgate
R.G.	Miller, Amherst
R.T.	Wickhorst, Navy

I've got a half-nelson on jimmy-pipe joy

I TOOK P. A. for better or worse . . . and found it better! Better than anything I had ever smoked. That's my story and I'm going to stick to it. When siren-brands try to flirt, I just give them the icy stare. I know what I like in a pipe, and what I like is Prince Albert!

The instant you break the seal on the tidy red tin and get that wonderful fragrance of real tobacco, you know you are in for a pipe-treat. Your mouth fairly waters for a taste of tobacco that smells as good as that. Then you load up and light up—ah! . . .

Cool. Sweet. Fragrant. Old words, I'll admit, but you get a brand-new idea of how much they can mean in a pipe-bowl packed with P. A. Maybe you've always thought such pipe-pleasure was "just around the corner." Try a load of Prince Albert and turn that corner!

Get a half-nelson on the pipe-joy that's due you. Before you do another thing, buy a tin of Prince Albert and tuck a neat wad into your pipe. Notice how mild it is, yet how delightfully full-bodied. Here's a smoke that you can pal around with, morning to midnight.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

Supper Ideas for Sunday Nights

By MARTHA LEE

HELEN and I are hoping that you will include a trip to Martha Lee's Kitchen at No. 15 Summer street on your list of "things to do" this week. We're devoting this particular week to Sunday night supper suggestions.

One of the most interesting things we're doing is baking individual sponge cakes in glass custard cups. In these heat-proof [illegible] cakes achieve a meltingly tender, golden brown crust that doesn't seem to come with any other method of cookery.

We baked some of the cake dough in the glass ramekins, too, and then frosted these little individual cakes with our half-a-jiffy frosting (ready prepared chocolate sauce thickened with confectioner's sugar). Some of the others we split, spread with raspberry jam in between and on top and covered with whipped cream.

Our coconut layer cake was an aggravation to every man in the vicinity of Summer street. I didn't think that so soon after Thanksgiving men could look as hungry as they did when their eyes caught that cake.

The delicious baked cheese dreams we made Saturday were really more than well-seasoned cheese sandwiches baked in a milk custard in a square glass baking dish. Their popularity, we think, is deserved.

And, of course, we're not going to forget to mention the butterscotch shortcake with cream. I'm giving you the recipe of the butterscotch sauce to be served with them, but to be honest, we bought our butterscotch sauce in a convenient glass jar for less than we could make it and equally as good.

Coconut Cake—Cream one-half cupful of butter or substitute with three-quarters cupful of sugar. Beat the yolks of three eggs until light; add to this another three-quarters cupful of sugar. Beat well and add to the first mixture of creamed shortening and sugar. Sift, then measure three level cupfuls cake flour; then add one-half teaspoonful salt and three teaspoonfuls baking powder, sifting mixture three times.

Take one cupful coconut milk or one cupful milk, and beat this liquid and the flour alternately into creamed shortening and sugar. Add one teaspoonful vanilla and beat thoroughly. Then fold in lightly three stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in two medium layer pans in hot oven and let cool before icing. Double recipe for three large layers.

Beat whites until stiff and dry; fold in half of sugar, using broad knife; add rest of sugar. Cut in yolks well beaten, flour, salt and lemon. Bake forty-five minutes in a slow oven in six glass custard cups or in loaf pan.

Butterscotch Shortcakes with Cream—Cream one-half a cup of butter; beat in one cup of sugar, one egg beaten light without separating, one-half a cup of milk, one cup and one-half of sifted flour, sifted again with three teaspoonful of baking powder, and lastly, one teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Bake in paper baking cups. Serve with Butterscotch Sauce—Turn one cup of cream, one cup of sugar, and one cup of dark corn syrup into a double boiler. Mix thoroughly and let cook over boiling water for one hour then beat in one dessertspoonful of butter and one-half a teaspoonful of vanilla extract.

Garnish the dish with whipped cream.

Cheese Biscuits—Sift together two cups flour and three teaspoons baking powder. Add one-half cup cheese (grated) and one-half teaspoon salt. Work in two tablespoons butter with tips of fingers. Add one cup milk. Drop from spoon in uniform, small portions on baking sheet. Bake fifteen minutes in moderate oven.

Spiced Filled Coffee Cake—Delicious served at evening gatherings with coffee or at bridge luncheons as the dessert. Sift flour and measure three cups. Sift again with four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon mace or nutmeg, one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon and three-quarters cup sugar. Work in one-quarter cup butter with finger tips. Add two eggs (unbeaten) and one cup milk. Stir to a smooth dough. Turn into a well-oiled round cake pan and cover with the following top mixture:

Top Mixture—Cream one-quarter cup butter and add three-quarters cup brown sugar and three tablespoons flour. Cream together well. Add one-half teaspoon cinnamon and one-eighth teaspoon salt. Spread over the top of the coffee cake. Sprinkle over top three-quarters cup almonds cut in small pieces. Bake twenty-five minutes in moderate oven.

When cool split cake in half—put a layer of sweetened whipped cream over the bottom half of cake. Cover with upper half of cake and serve, cutting sections as if it were a pie.

Yours for more,

Martha Lee

WHILE A WOMAN WITH A GOOD HUSBAND LOOKS DOWN ON THE WOMAN WITH NONE!

Some WOMEN profess to be MASCULINE, Others are professionally FEMININE. And NEITHER think much of the other, for both are HANGING on to a DIFFERENT END of the stick.

A woman who can live INDEPENDENTLY Of MEN does not THINK as much of men as the Woman who CANNOT live WITHOUT a man. Neither Does she think much of the woman who needs one.

A PRETTY WOMAN with heaps of BEAUX or a Good HUSBAND and some bouncing BABIES, thinks DIFFERENTLY, and often looks down on the woman With NONE. And so it goes!

Beauty versus BRAINS, MIND versus HEART, MEN versus INDEPENDENCE, LOVE versus a CAREER. Maybe it is best to grab the CANDY in the MIDDLE and CHEW a bit off each end.

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON.

CHAPTER 66.

NOW horror crept over Rosemary, leaving its slimy imprint behind. She gasped and unclasped her [illegible] that some [illegible] that was in her mind. [illegible] lied to her? Could [illegible] story of a dead one [illegible] had his wife loved and showered her money upon him? Had he come to her fresh from this [illegible] fat, reeking arms? Was the Sloan Whitney's Coralie—alive?

She covered her face with her hands.

"Don't pull that stuff on me, I tell you! Save your tears for the judge. I'm going to have you up—"

For the Judge—Rosemary lifted her streaming face. Was the woman going to arrest her? Could she? Was there some law. . .?

"But I haven't done anything!" she cried. "I didn't even know he was married. We've just been friends—there—there hasn't been anything wrong!"

"Nothing wrong!" Again the wheezing, terrible laughter. "Don't waste your breath. Do you think I'm crazy? And you didn't know he was married. Ha, ha, ha—you didn't know, ha, ha, ha—"

"He told me you were dead!" The words shot out of Rosemary's mouth. She rose to her feet, suddenly very strong and cool. She no longer feared the gun, the threatened jail.

She no longer feared anything. Everything that could happen, had happened. What came after this was nothing. She had the queer, detached feeling that she was already dead.

She knew she was still talking, still moving, still making gestures that stood for living, but they didn't mean anything. She was just doing all this convulsively, as a mangled angle worm wriggles after its little life is done.

"He told you I was dead?" the woman whispered. "Dead?" She pressed her heart. "The swine! He told you that, did he?"

"Yes," Rosemary said. She didn't care whether the woman believed her or not—it didn't matter.

There was a long silence, broken only by the breathing—the strangled, wheezing breathing of the fat woman who had come to kill her. Rosemary began to study her, as she might have studied some giant insect in a case.

She searched the blotched red face for the apple-blossom beauty that was once Sloan's delight. Her brittle, burnt hair might have been pretty once. Her thick, loose lips might once have been a Cupid's bow.

The haggard, homely woman with sagging jowls faded dizzily away and in her place stood Coralie, with hair like color of ripe wheat and her mouth like a rose.

"But there were years and years when you knew I was alive!" The harsh voice came triumphantly, breaking in on her thoughts. "You were after him from the first. I knew it. A fortune teller told me ——"

"What did you say?" Rosemary asked patiently.

"I said if you thought I was dead now, there was a long time when you damn well knew I wasn't."

"But I haven't known him a long time."

The woman leaned against the door and moaned. "God, why don't I kill her? Why do I listen to lies? Everybody lies to me. They always have. I never had a chance. He always lied, everybody lied. Doctors, lawyers, everybody. Even the detective I paid to trail him. He told me he'd gone to Spain and thrown you over—and you were living here with another man. And then he said you weren't here at all —

Spain"——

Rosemary began to see a light—a little flickering light of hope in the black, slim darkness.

"Who do you think I am?" she cried. "Who are you?"

But the woman went on, unheeding. "Too thin. I knew better. He never lets go, he never changes. He always hated me—I tried to change him, but I couldn't because he loved you—you—you!"

Her voice rose in a shriek. "I was too smart for you. I knew you'd never give him up, either. How much did you pay Gaines and Warburton to double-cross me? How much of my money—the money my first husband left me, to buy off that detective I set to trail you? Where did you get that Spain story —where is my husband?"

"Oh, stop"—— Rosemary cried. "Stop—you think I'm Nina Clark. You're Mr. Cuyler's wife—and you had that detective follow me, because I live in Nina's apartment—stop—don't you see you've made a mistake?"

The woman's face had gone ashy pale. Her round blue eyes were fixed and staring. She opened her mouth, but no words came, just the loud, snoring breathing.

"I'm not Nina, Mrs. Cuyler! Your husband isn't here—why, I don't even know him!"

"No, you aren't Nina Clark——" the words were thick, falling gaspingly over one another. "You're—Cleopatra. And I'm Napoleon. No!" she shrieked, "I'm not Napoleon—I'm dead——" Her whole body began to heave, convulsively, "but if I'm dead, so are you!" She raised the little shining pistol—"The joke's on you—the joke's——"

She lurched, and Rosemary, in one swift, catlike bound, leaped and struck the weapon from her hand.

The pistol dropped to the rug with a small, clanking sound. Rosemary kicked it away from the fat, reaching hands. "No, you don't!" she was crying, "no, you don't——"

"The Making of a Husband"; Ann Lisle's Serial

THE late September sun was remote and cold, and I found myself shivering nervously even after my cold shower in the luxurious bath which Loren Haldane's camp was fitted. So I dressed in a thick jersey sport dress and ran down to take an invigorating climb in the thick pine woods back of the camp. After roaming around for half an hour with the aimlessness that seems part of me now, I found myself at the top of a little hill under the woody rise back of the camp. Behind me was thick forest screening me from "The Wilderness." Before me was an abrupt green slope ending in a little brook beyond which were the marshes where I could see the floating decoy ducks.

Presently I saw a boat put in at a float and after a while there was a crunching on a side path which indicated that some one was coming up from the marsh. Before I could find a little covert in which to hide, Loren Haldane emerged, dressed in thick leather jacket and high hip-boots and plodding along gaily in spite of the heavy bag slung over his shoulder.

"Good morning, Anne," he called gaily. "Have you been watching me get your dinner? You're up early, my dear," he added in his evert courtly fashion. "I trust you slept well."

"Excellently," I replied. "But the sun tempted me to come out and make a tour."

"Fine," he said, slinging down his bag on the slope and sinking down next to it. "Now let's have a bite of breakfast together."

He rummaged under a rock while I looked on in amazement, and in less than no time, he brought forth a red and white checked cloth, a thermos bottle full of steaming coffee and a box of buttered rolls.

Nothing could have suited me better than this exclusive little breakfast party with the fine old man who was my employer at the time that Jim came whirling into my life and carried me off to what I thought was going to be paradise for two. I found myself beginning to relax and glow with a certain pride as Loren Haldane devoted himself to making me feel at home, and made it evident that he was thoroughly enjoying the society of his ex-secretary.

When we had eaten the rolls to the last crumb, finished the delicious coffee and I had given the permission to smoke, which Mr. Haldane never does in a woman's presence without asking if he may, he leaned forward and examined me with kindly shrewdness.

"I'm afraid you didn't rest quite as well as you want your host to believe, my dear," he said at last. "There are tired lines on your bonny face and your eyes are not as bright as I'd like to have them. Anything on your mind? Anything I can help you manage?"

"Life," I replied bitterly. "Can you help me manage that?"

CHAPTER XXXIII.

STIFLING under a spell of helpless indignation at Tony's odd conduct, Derry saw him exchange a word with Willowdean and join the crowd, putting for $5 sweepstakes on the clock green

Derry could have kicked him! But preferably she could have kicked herself. If the cherub would only come back now she'd show Tony. Just spite. But maybe Tony was unspiteable. Cold and clammy thought! Looking around for the absent cherub, she met Willowdean's eye.

"What, ho, Derry girl! Finished vamping the golden youth? What now?"

"I'm going to bed," returned Derry crossly.

"What? At this ungodly hour? There's going to be a giddy supper at midnight."

"They can have it without me then."

"Sick?" asked her solicitous friend

"Bored."

Easy to say; not so easy to do, Derry found it. At 3 o'clock she answered the chime of the clock by rolling out of bed with a lively curse, and creeping down through the stilled house to consult the stars upon the best antidote for an exasperated insomnia.

That they imparted to her some valuable secret is proven by the fact that she was still asleep the next noon when Willowdean came yawning in with the breakfast tray.

"What time did you get to bed?" Derry asked her.

"No time to speak of. Blackie and I sneaked a sailboat and went out and owned the lake. He had to leave today."

"You didn't own all of it," Derry grinned.

"Were you out, too? We didn't see any other boat."

"I wasn't in a boat. I took a little swim around the island."

"Derry! It's a mile there and back. Were you alone?"

"Naturally. Did you think I organized a party?"

"Nobody but you would be batty enough to take such a chance. Suppose you should get a cramp?"

"Then I'd end my vacation a few weeks earlier than was planned," was the cold reply. "You can come with me tonight, if you like."

"I? Brrr-rrhoo! I couldn't swim a stroke in that black water. Derry, promise me you won't try it again."

"I promise you I will!"

Derry resumed her role of universal favorite and danced every dance that evening. By midnight she had had enough. Yet when she crawled into bed at 1 o'clock, spent and weary it did not add to her peace of mind to realize that she had not seen Tony and the awed young flapper, Amy, with whom he had gone sailing, come in.

As a matter of fact, that sailing trip was long since over, Tony having landed his fair passenger at the dock and having been, himself, intercepted by Willowdean, self-appointed Assistant Manager of Fate.

"You needn't overdo this thing, you know, Tony," she warned. "That's a rash voyage for an unprotected, inexperienced youth like you."

"I can still look you fearlessly in the eye, Willowdean," he asseverated solemnly, "and tell you to go to hell."

"Because you went rushing off on a false trail," Willowdean told him. "Derry's taken to dead-of-night swimming." She recounted the episode. "She threatens to repeat tonight."

"I don't know how I can."

"Then, I certainly couldn't. If I undertook to prevent her she'd only ——"

"Of course she would. But there are times when a pound of cure is worth an ounce of prevention."

"I think I begin to see. I'm a pretty good swimmer myself. And I've been known to suffer from insomnia, after several cups of black coffee."

"Verbum saphead! You aren't such a total loss. Good luck, by land and sea!"

The night came on murky and thick with a darkness in which vagrant accesses of wind moved, purposeless as ghosts; the kind of night that weighs down upon a fevered mind, heating it to unendurable restlessness.

Derry crept cautiously from her bed and looked out. There was but one point in the all-absorbent darkness; a single small light glowed at the pier; somewhere below it the float lay in black shadow, lapped and lifted by the small waves.

Out beyond waited appeasement, relief, release. She thrust her feet into a pair of pads, drew a dressing gown around her, tiptoed down the stairs and drifted through a half open window, a creature of light, as much a part of the embracing, caressing night as the little whispering winds themselves.

Like a wraith she sped across the lawn, along the beach, out to the float. As the smothering, cramping shell falls from the released, outspread wings of the emerging moth, she thrust out from her enwrapments, and the cool, dark waters took her into their embrace.

She exulted. To swim . . . to cleave, silent, through the silent waters . . . to accept the enfoldment of the unknown . . . to yield oneself, stripped of all excrescences, all the artificialities of existence . . . to merge one's existence with the infinite darkness wholly, passively submissive to unreckonable currents, unmeasurable depths, impenetrable night. And, at the end, to surrender to exhaustion?—which is but another name for peace—which is but another name for death. Why not? If she passed the shapeless bulk of the islet rock which was her turning-goal and kept on, on, on, what would she forfeit that was worth holding. What prize was in the game worth the rigors and risks of the play?

Out of the water a rod away darted something small and swift, to fall back with a creepy, culpish sound. Another, yet another, all around her; a school of fish at play in the dark safe waters.

Derry, her mood changed, quickened, fired, made a sudden plunge forward, avid to join them, tingling with the awakened sense of life.

The island lay, still and lifeless, as she rounded it. What a turmoil she could raise among the half dozen sleepers there by lifting her voice in one mad shriek.

Perhaps she could endow that unhaunted locality with a ghost of its very own! The strength of the temptation testified to her vitality, her hold on life. She had almost yielded, was ready to draw breath for the eerie challenge, when an uneasy tingling impression was borne in upon her that she didn't have the lake entirely to herself.

[illegible] turned on her back and waited. Something vague and bulky disturbed the face of the waters a little back of her. No small and playful fish, this! A sick, chill terror darted in her blood. Sharks! was her instinctive, unreasoning fear. Idiot! the second thought followed. There are no sharks in inland waters; no fish as big as—as a man, for instance, nor as dangerous. She called softly:

"Who's there?"

"Don't apologize. It isn't my lake."

"Shall I follow, at a respectful distance?"

She considered the discreet, cloaking darkness in which her own arms were but the vaguest informulate candescence to her eyes. "No. Come alongside."

"Tired?" he asked as he swam up.

"Not a bit. Race you around the island."

At the far point she turned and floated, three yards in the lead.

"You're good," he said.

"You could have beaten me easily. I watched your stroke."

"Not at all. I did my best."

"Liar! Polite as always. I'm going back."

"May I come along?"

"Freedom of the seas."

"Do you mind? You might get a cramp, you know."

"How considerate! Come as far as the pier-head, if you like."

Polite as always! And he could continue to be polite in this soft darkness that enveloped him, that shut them in together, alone in a hidden universe! He would keep it up until the end. What end? . . He shouldn't! Not if she could shake him out of that complacent courtliness! At what she judged, from the small deceptive pin-point of the pier-head, to be a hundred yards out, she turned, floundered, threw up her arms.

"Oh, nothing, I reckon," she answered.

Honey Lou was still wondering what she really had meant when the mantel clock struck seven, a key grated in the outer door and Margret came in.

Margret Moody was Mrs. Huntley's daughter by her first husband. He was dead, just as Honey Lou's father was dead

Neither of the girls could remember her father. As far back as either one could remember, there had been just the three of them—mother and Margret and Honey Lou.

Somehow or other Mrs. Huntley had scraped together enough money to bring up the two girls and send them to business school.

She had sold the house on Pond street—the house where Honey Lou was born. She had sold her rings and her bracelets, and all her furniture, stick by stick, as the years went by

There was only enough of it left to furnish the little flat where they lived now. But what was left was beautiful—old brown mahogany, polished by time and use—old silver with a crest on it. The crest of the Huntley family.

The crest meant nothing to Honey Lou. She lived not for the past—but for the glorious present. For today! Today was what counted!

She could not share her mother's sorrow because she was a working girl, either. She gloried in her job with Old Man Wallack — or "Grumpy," as she called him.

With a high heart she pressed and mended her last year's clothes and re-trimmed her last year's hat. She thought that the princess slips that Mrs. Huntley made from handkerchief linen were the loveliest slips that ever were—and did not sigh for silk.

To her the three hundred dollars that she and Margret brought into the home every month were riches.

Margret earned more than Honey Lou did. She made fifty dollars a week as bookkeeper in the Brigham Hospital, and Honey Lou thought that she was a wonder

It was at the hospital that Margret had struck up a friendship with young Stephen Mayhew, who was finishing his medical training there.

* * *

"Stephen Mayhew," mused Honey Lou to herself, as she went out into the little kitchen of the flat and put the water on to boil for tea. "Stephen Mayhew — now, what [illegible] mother mean when she said that Stephen would never marry Margret while I'm around—"

Why, Stephen treated her as if she were a child! He brought her magazines, sometimes, or candy. Once in a while he would ask her to go along, when he and Margret were going out to the movies. But beyond that he barely noticed her.

Or so it seemed to Honey Lou, at least, as she thought it over.

It was while she and Margret were putting the supper on the dining room table that she told her about the man who had offered to drive her home that night.

"Margret," she said, with that wonderful smile of hers that was part gayety and part wistfulness, "I saw a man today."

Margret laughed. "Not really!" she chaffed the younger girl.

"Don't be silly, Margret." The smile faded from Honey Lou's little face. "You should have seen him! Tall and broad-shouldered and with the bluest eyes. It seems to me I've been waiting to meet him all my life. He spoke to me and I wouldn't answer him. But if ever I see him again—"

The door opened and Mrs. Huntley came into the room.

Honey Lou's face flushed.

"Nothing," she said to her mother.

It was late the next afternoon that Honey Lou met Jack Wallack. She met him properly, as a nice girl should meet a man.

"Grumpy," himself introduced him to Honey Lou in the private office just above the shipping room at the factory.

"My son, Jack, Miss Huntley," he said in his gruff off-hand way when Honey Lou walked into his office with a pile of order slips in her hand.

Honey Lou was facing the light from the west windows and it was a couple of seconds before she could see who it was that stood beside the Old Man's desk.

Then her heart seemed to come up into her throat. It was the [illegible] man of the black and nickel roadster! So he was Jack Wallack!

He was waiting for her again when she left the building that night.

Even before she started down the stairs something told her that he would be there, waiting for her.

He came toward her, through the purple winter dusk, as she stepped out.

"Tonight—may I take you home?" he asked. His head was uncovered and even in the darkness she could see the eagerness in his eyes under the blond hair that swept back from a fine wide forehead.

Honey Lou's low, husky voice trembled. "It isn't raining," she said. But she got into the car.

"Well, here we are again!" Jack Wallack said.

He turned in his seat and looked intently at Honey Lou. And Honey Lou looked back at him with her come-hither gaze.

She felt him take her hand in his, and she did not move or try to stop him. He turned back her shabby kid glove, and kissed the velvety palm and the slender little wrist.

Still Honey Lou did not move. Nothing like this had ever happened to her before in her life, and she did not know how to take it. It seemed such a respectful, harmless sort of kiss—a kiss on her little hand.

Then, in another second her mouth was against his mouth, and he was kissing her with a desperate sort of passion.

He had not intended to do it—to kiss her that way. It was almost as much of a surprise to him as it was to Honey Lou.

But Honey Lou did not know that. Half choking with fury and shame, she leaned back in his arms and caught him squarely on the jaw with the flat of her little hand—the hand he had just kissed.

"Don't ever—do—such a thing again! Don't dare to," she blazed out at him in gasping sobs.

She tore open the door of the black and nickel roadster and fled into the darkness of the countryside, toward the Boylston street cars in Brookline.

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Was that the end of Honey Lou's romance—or only the beginning? Did Jack Wallack let her "walk back"—or did he do something else? Read tomorrow's chapter for the answer

Correct Manners Explained

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have been told that it is not proper to use the prefix "Mrs." if you are a divorced woman and the man is married again. Should I use "Mrs. Edna Wales" or "Edna Wales" only. I have two babies.

E. W.

INDEED, most divorced women use the prefix "Mrs."—all do unless they have especially requested that they have their maiden names restored. The best form for a divorced woman to use for her name is the last name of her maiden name as the prefix before the last name of her married name. This is the form that most divorced women use now, and I think that it is a very dignified form.

For example: Edna Porter marries Henry Wales and later divorces him. She then uses the name Mrs. Porter Wales. This is the form that she would use, for instance, on her visiting card.

Her business letters she would sign like this:

Very truly yours,
Edna Porter Wales.

Surgery Useful Foe of Cancer

By CHAS. A. L. REED, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

CANCER, or carcinoma, is a malignant tumor consisting chiefly of skin cells, called epithelial cells. It disorganizes the tissue in which it grows. It spreads to or appears in other parts of the body. It may appear simultaneously in different parts of the body. Its growth may be rapid or slow. It eventually causes death unless successfully removed by operation, or by other means which destroy the already diseased tissue.

Cancer in plants is said to be due to lack of "soil, solar and climatic eequilibration"—which means a disturbance in the equilibrium of the elements upon which and under which they normally live.

Wild animals in a zone selected by instinct are free from cancer, but domestic animals living in a zone imposed upon them frequently develop it.

Uncivilized people who get their food fresh and live under conditions which suit them seem to be free, but become susceptible when they come to live in civilized communities when deprived of the necessities of their primitive economy. Cancer, therefore, is called a disease of civilization or of "dissociated environment."

The occurrence of cancer is greatest in persons above middle age. The tissues of these people are more susceptible to irritation, whether it be mechanical or produced by heat, chemicals or parasites, and the disease tends to appear in tissues that have been subject to such irritation.

A part of the body the function of which is interfered with or entirely inhibited is especially liable to cancer.

The grade of the malignancy largely depends on the degree of susceptibility of the part it attacks.

Cancer as such si not heriditary, but heredity seems to provide a predisposition to the "cancer phase." That is to say, members of a susceptible family develop the disease under a certain kind of irritation, while members of an immune family will go free under the same form of irritation.

Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio.—"After having my first baby, I lost weight, no matter what I did. Then a doctor told me I would be better if I had another baby, which I did. But I got worse, was always sickly and went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles, I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble."—MRS. M. RIESSINGER, 10004 Nelson Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

If some good fairy should appear and offer to grant your heart's desire, what would you choose?

Wealth? It's a transient thing that brings its own cares.

Happiness? It's an elusive thing which we keep by giving away.

Health? That's the best gift. Health is riches that gold cannot buy and surely health is cause enough for happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be the good fairy who offers you better health.

PLAYING EMOTIONS

By LUCY LOWELL

THEY started it as a game. You know—one of those flippant pastimes of people in love. It caused much hilarity at first. But it wasn't so very long before the laughter turned to bitter tears. He protested that he had never known a jealous moment in his life. She, too, had never known what it was to be jealous. Each secretly thought it strange that the other was never jealous, and each was secretly harassed, because it is said that love without jealousy belies the name.

Whereupon the game began—just as a joke at first. Each thought it would be rather fun to see the green eyed monster rear his head. How amusing, she thought, to turn to him (the word is always italicized in some one woman's mind) and point out that she had been responsible for at least one new experience. Telepathy or spontaneous combustion produced the converse idea in his mind. And they were off—with disaster at the finish.

It is only a short while ago that she first looked deep into the eyes of another man that she danced with when her finance was looking. And it isn't very long since he first rhapsodizezd about her best girl friend. They've married since. And now they are at it morning, noon and night.

It's just like scuffing a few pebbles down a hill in an idle moment and then being swept in a terrific slide that follows.

Too frequently our emotions resemble pebbles. They lie dormant and inactive, until accident puts one of them in motion. When it is all over, somewhere in the debris of released passions is a bedraggled little ego, desperately seeking its self-respect, lost in the slide.

But some people like to experiment with their emotions. They are terribly curious about themselves. They go from one thing to the next, exhausting first one emotion, then another. And at last they come to rock bottom, still curious—with the curiosity of satiety. They reach further and further and sometimes overcome with ennui, they turn to crime. The newspapers have had much to say in recent years about the 'thrill crime."

DAILY SHORT STORY

CONSPIRACY

By Merlyn Swift

"YOU know, Miss Lathrop," observed Burmester in his oily manner. "It was awfully good of you to run up to see me this afternoon. Somehow I thought you'd be in the enemy's camp, for this day will see Temple's finish. I guess he'll never again try to fight an old man like me. I'm too clever for the youngster. I figure he will have about enough to pay a week's board when tonight comes."

"Yes?" June Lathrop raised a fine-drawn eyebrow a sixteenth of an inch. "You are out to ruin Dale Temple this time, Julius, are you?"

Burmester expanded like a swollen toad. It was the first time June had ever called him Julius. Perhaps she was getting to like him!

"Why—ah—yes, June."

He admired the cigar in his pudgy fingers, pursed his sensuous lips and took on the expression of a prize pig.

June looked at him with what seemed to be awe.

"Yes, I'm out to ruin him," pursued Julius. "He has crossed me once too often. But it's chiefly because . . he was too popular with you that I determined to clamp the lid down. You don't mind, do you?"

Julius reached for her hand. She let him touch it; then took it away and toyed with her cigarette case . . . a shiny, silvery thing that Dale Temple had given her.

"Up here in this old house on the highest spot around, June, I sit and take my ease. In New York my agents carry on for me. By tonight I'll be a richer man than ever and Temple will be worth nothing to the world, to himself or to you. Now I have everything. . . . An offensive beast, Burmester, when talking about himself; hence always offensive); everything that you like, that you need. I can give you jewels, money, motors. . . ."

"You have a wonderful brain for finance, Julius," cooed June looking at him with patent admiration. "You're marvellous!"

June selected a cigarette from her case, closed it with a noisy snap and watched the sunlight reflect from it in dazzling flashes. She looked down the hill to the spires of the city and picked out a street-corner where she had been talking to a young man, not half an hour before. Julius Burmester's house, Crow's Summit, could be seen for miles from down below there.

"Won't you tell me how you do it . . . Julius?" asked June with wheedling softness. "I love to hear captains of finance talk of their operations. Now this business of Dale Temple for instance . . I'll admit I was fond of Dale, but what woman can love a defeated man! Is it not more likely that she would turn to and admire the one who . . ."

"Tell me how you beat Dale Temple . . . Julius?"

His air was cunning. He glanced at his wrist-watch, hesitantly.

"Well, it's not done yet, quite I should not speak about it till my men have finished their work. If Temple could foresee my moves even now he might save himself and turn things against me. A good general does not act prematurely. You smoke too many cigarettes, June." He said solicitously. The case had never left her hands.

"Oh, no, not so many. Your narrative excites me. Go ahead, won't you? You were saying. . .?"

"There's no one but you to hear. And you intend to stay for tea, don't you? You couldn't tell him my. . ."

"What nonsense! Of course not. I'm marooned here at Crow's Summit, away from the world. And I intend to stay for tea. So you need not worry about my running off and using the phone or anything. I promise you I won't leave your company this afternoon."

Julius grinned. He was aching to tell someone of the clever way he had engineered Dale Temple's downfall. And to glorify himself in June's eyes at Temple's expense—he just could not let such a chance slip by.

"I'll tell you, June." He leaned forward confidentially. "It all hinges on the buying or the selling of one particular stock. If Temple knew the stock and whether to buy or sell he'd be all right. But before he can find out that my men are after Tristate Preferred and are selling it, it will be too late, too late for little Temple. He must learn that it is not safe to buck Burmester, and that it's especially dangerous to monkey with the woman Julius loves. . . ."

June seemed to be polishing the clear surface of her silver-case. She played with it restlessly, endlessly It made Julius nervous and he breathed a sigh of relief when at last she put it away and sat back, studying him with languid eyes. A warm, seductive slip of white flesh, June—red-lipped, blue-eyed. No wonder Julius felt dizzy at the thought of having her for his own.

"So you are selling Tristate Preferred, Mr. Burmester? How wonderful! Poor Dale. I felt sorry for the loser; yet it does not detract from my regard for the winner. You are a wonder in dealing with men. You know the business. Dale was absolutely baffled as to your movements. He couldn't even guess. You're a hard man. . . Julius."

"And I may hope that you. . you will marry me, June?" He made a clumsy attempt at being gentle.

"Of course. If Dale is ruined tomorrow, I'll marry you. I could not take a poor man."

"Tomorrow. Let's have a little golf, Jule."

Instead of golf June dragged her perspiring swain across the fields and kept him, foolishly sentimental until sundown. Then they returned to the Crow's Nest for tea.

No tea for Julius. He was like Sir Tom Lipton after an American Cup yacht race. A yellow flock of telegrams, a chorus girl's list of phone calls, a personal messenger or two were there to greet him. Everything had gone wrong. Temple had countered each move and seemed to know just what his opponent intended to do. He had thrown Julius' cohorts for a big loss.

June heard all this sympathetically.

"Then Dale isn't ruined, Mr. Burmester. And I won't be able to marry you. How galling! But how could they have learned that you were selling Tristate? Almost seems as if someone told . . . sort of signalled to someone . . . with, say, a mirror . . . or a cigarette case. . ."

"You, you . . . she——" Julius roared at the girl with a sudden burst of understanding. "That's what you were doing when you kept flashing the cigarette case, eh?"

"Might as well tell the truth and shame the devil, what Julius?" she asked flippantly. "Dale used to be in the navy. Taught me the signal code by lights once when we had nothing else to do. Sure, I signalled him. We planned and conspired together to trick you, Colonel Oil. Glad the sunlight worked as well as the old electric juice does."

Burmester sat, too stunned for speech, and June taking advantage of his semi-comatose state, rose and walked majestically through the door.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

SEVERAL well-known women are holding a sort of a connubial contest to see who can be married the most.

A CHELSEA girl is leading. She's two husbands ahead of the rest.

SHE'S had four this year and is working on the fifth.

SHE doesn't bother with divorces, they take too much time.

ONE girl has had so many husbands that a large mercantile house is using her marriage licenses for a mailing list.

SHE went to the altar so often that she bought her own church.

SHE had so many wedding rings that the police department arrested her for wearing brass knuckles.

THE last solitaire she got was so brilliant that when she walked down the street, all the automobiles dimmed their lights.

THE reason you never see any pictures of Cupid with clothes on is that he doesn't want to get arrested for carrying concealed weapons.

SHE isn't going to shoot him until February. He got time off for good behavior.

WOMEN are marrying so often nowadays, that girls who have only had one or two husbands are considered old maids.

THE WISE SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON---BY HELEN ROWLAND

But a man's little vanities are as the garlic in the salad, cautiously hidden and cunningly camouflaged.

Then, consider the Seven Secret Vanities of Man.

Consider his FEET. For, these are his vanity OF vanities, and the treasure of his eye.

Lo, thou mayest praise a man's virtue and exclaim at his wisdom and cleverness, and he will remain unmoved. But, when thou remarkest the slenderness of his foot and the snappiness of his SHOES, he is suffused with the blushes of pleasure.

Go to. A man may have but one wife, one collar-button, one motor-car, one evening coat, and one ambition in all the world.

But, of shoes and boots and pumps and slippers, his closet is full to overflowing, and two score pairs are not too many! Yet, he may fling his hat upon the nearest object, and drop his coat where it falleth—but his shoes must be reverently dusted and placed upon their trees with prayer and devotion.

Consider his CALVES. For, though these may be as crooked as politics and as knotty as a problem in foreign finance, yet doth he delight to display them; and his golf stockings are his pet possessions and cannot be TOO radiant.

Consider his cravats! For these are his secret joy and his first love. And, she that praiseth his taste in neckties, winneth his heart and maketh her goal at the first shot.

For, in his eyes, a dashing cravat is more to be desired than fame or glory; and a bright scarf exceedeth Fifth Avenue tailoring.

Consider his "line"! For, a man may deny his genius and pooh-pooh his nobility of character. But she who sayeth that he is "dangerous" and that he hath a "way with women" more irresistible than Don Juan's, receiveth first prize in the contest for his heart.

Consider his Perfect Judgment! For, behold thou mayest disagree with his religious, scorn his friends, and decry his politics. But, if thou asketh his OPINION and seekest his advice, now and again, thou shalt still "stand in."

And, lastly, my Daughter, consider his pride in his he-manliness! For a woman may be vain of her beauty, proud of her achievements and take conceit in her wit, her brilliancy or her intellect.

But a man taketh secret delight in the simple fact that he is a MAN—and therefore the goal of every woman's desire.

Verily, verily, my Daughter, these be the Seven Secret Vanities of Man. Remember them, I charge thee, to treat them reverently, that thy days may be long and pleasant in the House of Matrimony!

SELAH.

FOR Acid Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Try a 25c Bottle

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1875.

HE COUGHED SO BAD PEOPLE STARED—HAD TO LEAVE "MOVIE"

His Cough Worried Family Ordinary Remedies Did Him No Good

COUGHED WORSE NIGHTS OR WHEN INDOORS

"My husband months ago saw a doctor and was told there was nothing wrong with him, but that cough clung to him night and day. He would come from outdoors into a theatre or the house and soon he'd be hacking and barking terrible. Right in the midst of a movie he'd have to leave his seat. Neighbors commented on it.

He even took Cod Liver Oil, although he hated it, and quit before it did him any good. I finally told our doctor and he said: "Men are all alike and you can't blame him much, so go get him a big bottle of Linonine, it is a nice tasting Flaxseed, Eucalyptus, etc., mixture far better than Cod Liver Oil and works quick.

RESULTS WONDERFUL

"He liked 'Linonine' so well he took it before meals until the whole bottle was gone. It not only stopped his cough—it built him up fine. I never saw medicine work such wonders before. Anybody with a cold or cough should use Linonine—and children love it."

A cough is dangerous this time of year. Well stocked druggists have Linonine, 60c or $1.00 sizes—or send dollar bill for large bottle parcels post. Kerr Chemical Co., Brentwood, Md.

OTEST 'PINT N TEN DAYS' DECISION

The 5 to 4 decision of the full bench of the Supreme Court to limit physicians' liquor prescriptions to a pint per patient each ten days was received with protests by the majority of doctors.

DR. JOHN H. F. CONNOR, No. 295 Commonwealth avenue—The decision is a direct interference with a physician's duties toward his patients. The doctor ought to be the judge. However, the Supreme Court having acted, I join with all physicians in living up to the spirit of the ruling.

DR. JAMES A. MANSFIELD, No. 4 Hancock street, Dorchester—Congress has the right to pass certain laws, but there are ways to get around them. For instance, John Doe becomes ill, and is attended by a physician, who prescribes whiskey or other medicine. John still wants his medicine, having used what was already prescribed. The doctor goes to the house and prescribes the same medicine for John's wife, mother, sister, brother, et al. Instead of these persons using the medicine they pass it over to John, who needs it most. This is no evasion of the law.

DR. FREDERICK W. CHRISTOPER, No. 100 Boylston street—It's going to be hard for doctors to limit their patients to one pint each ten days. It would have been better for the Supreme Court to have set the limit at one quart. In certain parts of Canada, where prohibition is in effect they allow a quart of whiskey to a patient even oftener than ten days.

She's a Winner

MISS ANITA L. BANCROFT

As winner of the radio talent quest conducted by the Boston Evening American, Miss Bancroft has started her 10-week vaudeville engagement on the Loew circuit. She is appearing all week at the State Theatre with John Hill, of Andover, another winner.

HOME MAKERS' REPLIES BEING EXAMINED

The closing moment of Martha Lee's most successful Home Makers' Contest came with the stroke of midnight Saturday, November 27.

Bag after bag of mail is still coming in and everything bearing a postmark up to 12 midnight Saturday is eligible.

Within a few days, there will be a meeting of the three judges, Miss Alice Bradley, principal of Miss Farmers' School of Cookery; Mrs. Ida M. Hebbard, president of the Housekeepers' League and Martha Lee, household economist of the Boston Evening American, and the Advisory Committee of Mrs. Della T. Lutes, Miss Caroline Saunders and Miss Gladys Jones.

Meanwhile you will find in this paper each day the correct answers to two or more of the contest questions which can be answered definitely in a word or two. The answers to questions requiring longer replies cannot of course be published until the judging of the contest is completed. So watch this paper tomorrow for the correct answers to the first two questions.

PICTURE BOOKS SOLVE GIFT

By JOAN STUART.

"There's nothing like being influential," I bragged to the family at luncheon. "I see by the papers that my friends Queen Mary and King George of good old England were so impressed by my shop early advice that as soon as they heard about it they bought each other and the whole royal flock of gift-shopers, some Christmas presents."

"Seems to me that the Kink and the Kinkess are rather late," my brother observed. "I started my shopping some weeks ago."

"Pardon me," I begged of him. "It was undoubtedly your influence!"

"Why contest the honor?" Doug asked. "It may probably be that the King and Queen just used their own intelligence and avoided the rush. All of which reminds me, have you bought any toys yet, Joan?"

"I was waiting for Santa Claus and the minute he appeared I consulted with him."

Chuck opened his eyes wide with interest. "What did he say?"

"He told me that he had a letter from your cousin Bobby saying that he wanted a book so I rushed right in town and looked at heaps of wonderful books with pictures in them, just the kind of pictures you like—boats, pirates, treasure chests, all colored in blue and orange and red and yellow!"

"Did you get one for Bobby?" Chuck asked, by then all eyes.

"I did! I bought him a book that told all about pirates and I had it sent to Santa Claus and told him to deliver it to Bobby for Christmas."

"What was the tax on that?" Doug asked.

"Just $2.50! There were so many different books that I knew any youngster would adore that I finally chose one I thought we'd like to read too."

"Felice told me she met you in town yesterday," Aunt Lou remarked.

"She did," I agreed. "I'd stopped to look at a counter and found Felice there buying the most fascinating night lamp for her little brother. It was a very solemn owl. The one she bought was orange, but I noticed them in other colors. They were $3.50.

The owl, his perch, and all couldn't have measured much more than six inches high, and when you severed the owl's head, there was a small frosted bulb inside. The china, itself, was so fine, as German china often is, that when you plugged in the light, the owl just became illuminated."

"Would you by any chance state that the poor owl was 'lit'?" my brother wanted to know.

"That ends all between us," said I, and I left for town.

TALENT QUEST WINNERS MAKE DEBUT IN HUB

Stepping from the obscure position of a student struggling to obtain a musical education into the role of a "headliner" before a critical Boston audience has its moments of apprehension not to mention a feeling somewhat akin to terror, according to Miss Anita Louise Bancroft.

Miss Bancroft won the recent radio talent quest conducted by the Boston Evening American and she made her first appearance of a 10 weeks' prize contract at Loew's State Theatre.

Despite the mingled emotions that almost engulfed her, the vastness of the audience and the blinding glare of the spot light, Miss Bancroft, a lyric soprano from far-away Mantua, Ohio, captivated her listeners and responded to several encores with her partner, John Hill of Andover, another winner, in the Boston American contest.

Miss Bancroft came East two years ago to study at the New England Conservatory of Music and until her appearance at the Loew theatre had never sung in public. She is tall and slender, just past twenty-three, and her auburn hair is attractively bobbed. It was the handsome blue roadster offered as second prize that prompted her to enter the radio contest.

WANTED ROADSTER.

"I was just a little bit disappointed when the judges awarded me first prize," said Miss Bancroft as she sat in the "star's" dressing room waiting for her second curtain call. Her hazel eyes twinkled and twin dimples appeared for an instant. "You know, I had really set my heart on that lovely roadster."

"But now I feel quite different. I wouldn't miss the experience of today for a dozen roadsters, and maybe some day I'll be able to buy one just like it." But she hastened to add that her earnings from the prize contract would not be spent to fulfill that ambition.

"I have already planned to use my salary toward defraying my expenses at the Conservatory," she said. "It has been quite a problem for me to continue studying, but my earnings for the next ten weeks will make things a lot easier.

"I was so happy when people came to me after the matinee and complimented Jack Hill and I. I really didn't think they'd like my voice. I was so nervous in my dressing room before the curtain call, but when I came out front into the spotlight I was happily surprised to find myself singing. I was afraid that I'd just go out there and stand."

THRILLED BY APPLAUSE.

"And the spotlight! I couldn't see a single thing. I just had a feeling that there was a million people right in front of me—a million critics waiting to hear my voice. I think that after a moment I forgot everything but the words of my song, 'By the Waters of Minatonka.' And the next thing I remember was the applause, and it sounded so sweet I was afraid I might cry.

"Then it seemed that everyone in the audience was my friend and wanted me to make good in my first appearance, and I made a promise that I would try hard to sing better and better every time, just to please them.

"But it wasn't my singing alone that made me so happy. I don't believe I could have done very well without Jack Hill. He has a splendid voice. And then Joe Brennan, the manager, was a great help to both of us. He put our act together and worked hard to get it in shape for the first show. Everybody in the theatre is so nice. I think they know that we are just beginners and they help us in many ways."

"I wired mother today and told her about my costume. I'll wait till Christmas to tell her the rest. According to our itinerary we'll be in Cleveland Christmas week and my home is only a few miles from there." A call boy came to the door. "Only a few minutes left, Miss Bancroft."

"Oh, yes, thank you," she replied. And there Miss Bancroft's first interview ended.

EUCHARISTIC FILM GRIPPING

To the thousands who made the pilgrimage to Chicago, and to the millions who read about the spectacle, the film is an unsurpassed drama. Excellently screened, well edited, with perfect continuity, the film faithfully chronicles the affair from beginning to end.

The story opens with the departure of the Papal delegate Cardinal Bonzano, from the Vatican. Every vivid scene, every spectacular reception, every impressive ceremony that made history is faithfully recorded by the eye of the motion picture camera.

NUMEROUS PARADES.

In New York, where the foreign prelates first landed, there are the mighty spectacles of the millions who turned out to receive them and the brilliant parades that followed.

In Chicago, where the huge Stadium was turned into a vast cathedral roofed by the sky, the grandeur is breath-taking. It is hard to realize the magnitude and magnificence of the ceremonies.

HUB DELEGATES.

For Boston people, the participation of Cardinal O'Connell and the pilgrims from New England is many times in the foreground.

The picture is gripping. It is no newsreel, but a fine story of one of the greatest gatherings in history, completely and clearly depicting the vivid spectacle.
